Truck Strike End Waits Union Vote

Virtual settlement of the 32-day-old truck strike was assured today when union and employer representatives, after a lengthy night session at the Copley-Plaza, announced that both sides had reached an agreement on all issues.

President James V. Hurst of Local 25, AFL Teamsters Union, said the agreement would have to be ratified tonight by the 3500 drivers still out on strike, at a special meeting to be held at Municipal Bldg., Shawmut ave. and West Newton st., South End.

It was predicted the union membership would ratify the agreement and that the struck trucks would be rolling again tomorrow.

Hurst and members of the special committee of 18 union officials refused to disclose the terms of the agreement, asserting they wanted the men to vote without being pressured by forehand knowledge.

From another reliable source, however, it was reported the agreement includes a wage increase of 23 cents an hour, the largest single raise in the history of the trucking industry in New England and benefiting more than 1 union drivers.

This would give the drivers $55.20 for a 40-hour week and $66.64 for a 48-hour week with no overtime. A premium of 5 cents an hour for work done Saturdays and an extra holiday with pay were also reported as part of the agreement.

The drivers had asked for $65 for a week of 40 hours. They had been receiving $55.15 for a 48-hour week.

The strike began New Year's Day and was marked by several clashes in the early stages. Gov. Bradford threatened to seize the industry under the Slichter Act, but withheld action after the union pledged movement of the necessaries of life.

Democrats Concede Victory In House for GOP Tax Slasn

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—House Republicans were all set today to ram through their $6,500,000,000 tax slashing bill. Democrats conceded they were fighting a losing battle in efforts to substitute a smaller cut along with a revived excess profits tax on corporations.

But they were determined to go through the motions as the first big election year issue in Congress came to the voting stage.

Republicans and Democrats alike, however, agree the bill up for passage today is unlikely to be the one that goes to the White House.

Both sides look for the Senate to whittle down the amount of the cut in an effort to corral the Democratic votes needed to override an almost certain presidential veto.

Many Democrats want taxes cut, but insist the Republican bill sponsored by Rep. Knutson of Minnesota cuts too deeply, especially for people in the higher income brackets.

After a final round of debate the House was due to put first the Democratic substitute to a test and then the Knutson bill.

Home vs. Town Snowplow Has Day in Court

GLOUCESTER, Feb. 2—The Seener family of Conant ave. has definite ideas about snow and snow plows. Snow, the Seeners agree, is a nuisance. But snow plows—they only aggravate the nuisance by repeatedly blocking their driveway. When the last heavy snowfall occurred, the Seeners informed the highway department they would brook no snow plow activity in front of their home.

The department turned a deaf ear and went about its business.

The Seeners then turned a hand to a shovel and tossed all the snow banked up by the plow into the middle of the road. To emphasize their displeasures, police said, the Seeners wet the snow down and watched the mixture freez.

Th highway department waxed wroth. It swore out a complaint against Walter Robert Seener, 19, soon of C. Winslow Seener, charging the youth with violating a city ordinance.

Patrolmen Ralph O'Malley and Francis Kennedy twice tried to serve the summons, but were ordered off the Seener property.

Police took a turn at waxing wroth. They obtained a warrant from Court Clerk Harold Armstrong for the arrest of young Seener.

The Seeners, accepting the warrant, waxed eloquent in the courtroom of Judge Edward Morley.

As a matter of fact, they made so many speeches—separately and simultaneously—about their right not to have their section of the road plowed that the judge postponed the case to Feb. 16.

The Seener son didn't even enter a plea. There was too much talk.

BREAK CUTS KEENE GAS

KEENE, N. H., Feb. 2—More than 2100 consumers of the Keene Gas Service, including hospitals, restaurants and homes, were without gas for cooking today, after a break in a gas main in Emerald st. shut off the supply. Resumption of service was promised in two or three days.

Boy Slips on Ice, Dies Under Truck

Slipping on a patch of ice as he ran across Dorchester ave. near his home, 8-year-old Timothy O'Brien of Carson st., Dorchester, fell to his death beneath the wheels of a truck today.

Herbert E. Millar of Kinnard st., Cambridge, who police said was the operator of the garage-owned truck, reported he saw the boy running as he approached, police said. The driver said the youngster slipped and fell under the truck.

Millar took the victim to City Hospital but he was dead.

Reds Charge U. S. Using Iran To Peril Soviet

By NATALIE RENE

MOSCOW, Feb. 2 (INS)—Russia accused the United States today of transforming Iran into an American military base "endangering the frontiers of the Soviet Union."

Formal notes were handed to the Iranian government and to Walter Bedell Smith, United States ambassador in Moscow, setting forth the charges.

This was the fourth recent protest lodged by Russia against alleged American imperialism and violation of peace treaties.

The others concerned U. S. Air Force patrols in Far Eastern waters, reopening of the air base in Mellaha, Libya and the presence of American warships in Italian ports.

In the Iran protest, the United States was accused of menacing Soviet borders by the following:

1—Construction of fortifications and airdromes with assistance of American experts and advisers.

2—Violation of an agreement with Iran whereby the United States undertook to limit its advisers to 30.

3—Assignment of American officers to key military posts and to positions in many important institutions such as the civilian air force.

Suspect Held For Walpole Strip Murder

Robert W. Vinson, 26-year-old Westwood laborer, was held without bail in Walpole District Court today on a charge of murdering Mrs. Mildred Rafuse Clifford, 42, whose nearly nude and frozen body was found in the driveway of her home in Old Post rd., Walpole.

Visibly nervous but smiling slightly, the husky youth stood in the dock as the charge against him was read before Judge Herbert D. Robinson.

The complaint of Police Chief Levi S. Thompson was that Vinson allegedly "with deliberate premeditation and malice aforethought and with extreme atrocity and cruelty assault and beat Mildred Rafuse Clifford with intent to murder her by striking her over the head with a club and by such assault and beating did kill and murder her."

At Chief Thompson's request, the case was continued for one week and Vinson, handcuffed to two policemen, was returned to Dedham jail.

Immediately after the session, State Detective Lt. William H. Delay was asked about the club mentioned in the complaint.

"What club?" he asked.

WEAPON ELIMINATED

Later checkup in the clerk's office showed the words "by striking her over the head with a club" had been scratched out of the complaint.

Vinson, who is a brother of the husband of Mrs. Clifford's daughter, was picked up for questioning only a short time after the woman's frozen body was found yesterday.

During several hours of questioning he readily admitted making a round of drinking spots with Mrs. Clifford. He also said he had struck her twice when she called him obscene names as he was escorting her to the driveway of her home after leaving a taxicab.

Autopsy on the body of the victim was completed by Dr. Alan R. Moritz, state pathologist, and the remains released today. Private funeral services will be held tomorrow from the James Ginley Funeral Home, Main st., Walpole, with burial in Walpole Cemetery.

Dr. Moritz' autopsy report was forwarded to the office of Dist. Atty. Dewing.

Investigators said marks in the snow indicated the woman's body had been dragged 200 yards from the spot where Vinson admitted he struck the victim. One of her stockings was found near the body, the other some distance away.

VICTIM SCANTILY CLAD

The body was clad only in a brassiere and a pair of ski pants, one leg of which had been pulled from the victim. The body was covered with what investigators said were teeth marks.

At Vinson's home, police found a shirt and pair of trousers stained with what appeared to be blood. Both were turned over to

Gala Glasgow Welcome for Friend Ship

GLASGOW, Feb. 2 (AP)—Flags were flying, a bagpipe band played, and Sir Harry Lauder sang today at the official reception for the "Yankee Friend Ship" and its $1,250,000 cargo for the needy of Scotland from the people of New England.

Within five minutes of the reception decorated trucks piled high with the gifts sped from the docks to hospitals and other distribution centers.

The docks were crowded for the ceremony. W. N. Bump, director of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, greeted officials on the ship.

Tom Johnston, chairman of the Scottish tourist board; Arthur Woodburn, Scottish secretary of state, and Dr. Edith Summerskill, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of food, took part.

SYMBOLIC PACKAGE

Bump presented a small, symbolic package to Johnston on behalf of President Michael Kelleher of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Bump also spoke of the help of Paul Clark, another director of the chamber, in organizing the gift campaign.

"No accountancy is expected or wanted by the People of Boston," Bump said, "but we know these gifts will be handled in a wonderful way."

Johnston accepted the gifts as the spontaneous offer from a "great American city to a temporarily embarrassed Scotland."

"We shall never forget this," he declared. "It may be within the compass of the present generation of Scots to repay in some way this great act of friendship and goodwill.

"If ever a Bostonian should be in difficulties anywhere in the world, we would urge every Scotsman to render him all the kindness and assistance possible."

Tomorrow May Be Coldest of Winter

Groundhog day jokes were overshadowed today by a weather bureau warning tomorrow may be the coldest day of winter.

In a warning issued this forenoon, the bureau said:

"A cold air outbreak tonight will reach cold wave proportions in Boston tomorrow morning; temperatures by morning will reach 5 degrees along the coast and zero in interior suburbs."

Although the predicted temperature lows did not equal the below-zero marks of last week, the weatherman added we would have a real cold day with strong northerly winds "and it may be the coldest day of winter."

The predicted new cold spell, intensified by winds up to 30 miles an hour, will last through tomorrow according to the Weather Bureau, but no snow was threatened during that period.

The crisis in fuel oil supplies, which resulted in Sunday emergency deliveries being made to many Greater Boston homes, increased with the forecast of more cold weather.

Although shipping circles reported that approximately 30,000,000 gallons of oil would arrive in Boston port within the next two days, Clyde G. Morrill, executive secretary of the Independent Oil Men's Ass'n warned that total supplies were still far short of normal.

Self-Starving Kills Wellesley Graduate, 22

Death of a 22-year-old Wellesley graduate and social settlement worker was attributed today to malnutrition, induced by a mental quirk which for the past several years had brought about periods of moodiness and depression in which she refused to eat.

The victim, Miss Kathleen Lynch, daughter of an Evansville, Ind., physician, had been under treatment almost continually for the past few years by Dr. James C. Janney, Beacon st. psychiatrist, in an effort to remedy the psychosis, according to her close friend and classmate, Mrs. Mary Hoagland of Hillside st., Roxbury.

Mrs. Hoagland said her friend had undergone such periods of depression and refusal to eat several times during their college days and that she had arranged for her to consult Dr. Janney.

Dr. Richard Ford, associate medical examiner, confirmed that the psychosis was responsible for the malnutrition which resulted in the girl's death. As far as his office was concerned, the case was closed, he said.

The girl's parents were making plans today for the return of her body to Evansville for burial.

Shoestring Hub Traffic Probers Score Bullseye

By STANLEY CHIPMAN

Last year the Legislature created a commission with a long name, gave it a short bankroll and ordered it to look into the matter of traffic, housing, lighting and recreation in Boston.

Sen. Philip G. Bowker of Brookline was made chairman. It was a big order. When he asked how the study was to be financed, the Legislature counted out exactly $2500 and told him to think of the glory of it, for he now was head of the Special Commission on Traffic, Housing, Lighting and Recreation in Boston.

In the field of legislation, not much is expected of $2500 commissions. Therefore it is bound to be something of a shock when the Bowker commission makes its report this month, perhaps within a few days, for it has taken its task seriously. That portion of the report dealing with the Boston traffic situation is expected to talk of remedies on a multi-million-dollar scale.

Bowker and his associates have taken the stand that the patchwork remedies which have been adopted over the years have left Boston in a state of traffic congestion where only surgery can accomplish anything.

Hub Traffic

This is the first article of a series dealing with a strangler of progress—traffic congestion—which has retarded Boston, irritated its citizens and grown worse decade after decade. The Boston Common underground garage, authorized 20 months ago, is tied up in litigation. The Sumner Tunnel, opened in 1934, was the last major effort at remedy. From that year back to the construction of the Elevated, half a century ago, there was nothing but stopgap treatment for the progress-strangler. Now there are signs a major operation is in the offing, with city and state finally taking up the challenge.

The underground garage for the Common, authorized by the Legislature 20 months ago and planned to accommodate from 3500 to 5000 cars a day, is tied up in litigation. Pending the outcome of that, the little commission with the big program has a set of sweeping proposals being readied for Beacon Hill consideration.

These may run headlong in some respects into recommendations on the traffic tangle which soon will be made by the governor's Joint Board for a Metropolitan Plan, the Greater Boston Development Committee, or the legislative committee on highways and motor vehicles. For example, bridge versus tunnel for a new traffic link to East Boston.

N. Y. BRIDGES PAY OFF

It appears certain the Bowker commission will advocate a bridge. Advice from Robert Moses, New York park commissioner and head of the Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority, when the local group went to New York, was:

"Never build a tunnel when you can build a bridge."

According to Moses, his bridges, through toll fees, are paying for the deficits of his tunnels.

The Greater Boston Development Committee and the Joint Board for a Metropolitan Plan, the latter representing the State Planning Commission, Metropolitan District Commission and state department of public works, have been regarded as strong advocates of a second East Boston tunnel.

From the public utterances of Bowker commission members, it is regarded certain they will ask the state for funds to bring Moses and his engineers here to make a recommendation. They like the bridge idea. They say it should be a six-lane structure with skyway connections, the approaches to be near the airport at the East Boston end and near the South Station.

Their research has led them to believe a bridge with skyway approaches could be constructed for approximately $60,000,000 and paid for in 45 years by a 20-cent toll charge, with upkeep far less than that of a second tunnel.

The tunnel proponents, meanwhile, will have their own figures to cite in favor of their stand when they go before the legislature.

Free parking spaces at certain stations of the Metropolitan Transit system are also due to be recommended in the Bowker report, for example at the Charles st. station and the traditionally traffic-snarled circle there, one of the city's worst automotive bottlenecks.

Free parking lots at all Metro terminal points, so shoppers and workers may enter and leave the city by rapid transit, thus cutting down auto traffic intown, is another recommendation of the commission.

HUB PLAN COINCIDES

This would jibe with the Boston Traffic Commission's recommendations. Under consideration by the city now, as the result of surveys made by municipal engineers, is a plan to acquire parking lots at strategic points along the Metro's outlying routes.

The Bowker commission didn't have enough money to hire engineers but its members maintain they needed only their eyes to tell where the parking spots wre needed.

Serving with the Brookline senator are Reps. Philip C. Burr, vice-chairman; Enrico Cappucci and Gordon D. Boynton, with Chairman Elizabeth M. Herlihy of the State Planning Board and its members, and Lewis H. Weinstein, chairman of the State Housing board, plus its members.

When their delegation to New York saw Comr. Moses, he told them, some of New York's most successful solutions of traffic congestion problems had been achieved only after "ten-million-dollar" properties had been demolished for great traffic arteries, whereas in Boston, he suggested, the presence of a lone bit of statuary symbolizing an historical figure had been enough to force a detour of a new express highway.

Bowker's principal comment on what his group will recommend to the Legislature is:

"We aren't going around any statues and we aren't going back to the days of the late George Apley."

INJURED—Striking her head on a car mirror, Ruth Warrick, Hollywood actress, received a lacerated scalp that took 12 stitches to close. She was attempting to stop her youngster from jumping up and down on the seat when the accident occured.

Move in City Council To Urge UMT Vote

Universal Military Training, steadily gaining adherents throughout the Commonwealth, today was supported publicly by City Councilor Milton Cook, Roxbury, a World War II veteran and state senior vice-commander of the Jewish War Veterans.

Aware of the appalling cost of unpreparedness, Cook circulated a petition among the colleagues in the City Council, urging them to demand favorable action by the State's congressmen on the UMT measure now in the House rules committee's hands in Washington.

The petition asks the Massachusetts congressmen if they believe military training is needed now and whether they will vote for the bill at this session of Congress.

WOULD FORCE VOTE

Cook's action, as in the case of other prominent citizens and large civic organizations, is to force the rules committee to report the bill out for a vote in the House.

He praised the Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser and other Hearst newspapers in the country for their efforts to further the cause of UMT.

One of Cook's colleagues, City Councilor John A. Beades, Dorchester, also a World War II veteran, later signed a Record-American petition appearing on this page, and forwarded to Cong. John W. McCormack.

"I'm heartily in favor of immediate action by Congress on the Towe Bill for UMT," said Beades. "Congress should quit stalling any further and act one way or the other. If they are in favor, let them say so; if they are not in favor, let them do likewise."

WOMEN ACT

Mrs. Susane P. Shallna, Cambridge, president of the State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, led her organization in the fight for UMT by sending telegrams to House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., and Rep. Christian Herter, a member of the House rules committee.

The federation itself sent similar communications to each Massachusetts Reprsentative and Senator. Its clubs throughout the Bay State are now urging individual members to do likwise.

"We should deluge the Massachusetts congressional members with telegrams to force action on this measure as soon as possible," said Mrs. Shallna.

Triple Tragedy Autopsy, Chemical Reports Awaited

Police today were awaiting autopsy and laboratory reports before closing their investigation of the triple tragedy in which Arthur F. Huntington, 64, prominent Quincy clothing merchant, bludgeoned his wife to death, strangled her sister and then committed suicide by hanging in the cellar of their home in Norton st., Braintree

Medical Examiner Robert B. Ryan and Dr. Walter Jetter, associate state pathologist, performed autopsies on the three bodies last night at the Braintree funeral home. State Police Chemist Dr. Joseph Walker is completing chemical tests of articles found in the Huntington home, including an axe and two hammers.

Police Chief Edward D. Cahill of Braintree, after three hours of investigation, said he was convinced no outside party was involved in the double murder and suicide.

"We found nothing to indicate anyone else had been in the house," Chief Cahill said. "Everything was neat and orderly, and there were no signs of a struggle having taken place."

The only child of the Huntingtons, Mrs. Ruth Gottewald of Amityville, N. Y., was notified of the tragedy and planned to arrive by plane today. Huntington is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Grace Mason of Philadelphia.

The tragedy was discovered by neighbors who became alarmed when efforts to arouse or contact the family by telephone failed, and summoned police.

The latter found the body of Mrs. Alice Huntington, 67, stretched on a bed in a welter of blood. In an adjoining bedroom was the body of her sister, Miss Kate Gallagher, 60, a victim of strangulation.

In the cellar, attired in clean pajamas and bathrobe and with all bloodstains carefully washed from his hands, was found the body of Huntington dangling from a noose made from a clothesline which was fastened to a rafter.

MISSES FIRST TRY

Chief Cahill said a length of heavy twine was wrapped several times around Huntington's neck, and he believed this broke in Huntington's first attempt to hang himself, with the result he secured the clothesline.

Police said they had discovered no notes which might have been left by Huntington, nor could they find any instrument showing evi-

Child Bride Tells Why She Kidnaped Baby

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 2 (AP)—There was no bitterness, only tears, as a 17-year-old girl returned to a sobbing mother the 6-month-old baby boy she had taken from a parked automobile 24 hours before.

"I'm sorry. I knew it was wrong to take him but I felt sorry for him there alone in the car, crying," Mrs. Dorothy Parker, a childless child-bride of two years, told the mother.

She added that she lost a baby a year ago; couldn't have another.

"I said I wouldn't prosecute anybody that brought my baby back and I won't," replied the mother, Mrs. Louis B. Anders, 27.

Mrs. Anders and her husband were dancing when their son was taken from their car, parked outside the dance hall Saturday night.

Sheriff Bert Strand said that because of Mrs. Parker's age she would be placed in the juvenile detention home pending investigation. The girl said she does not know where her estranged husband is and that her parents are on a trip somewhere in Texas.

Fire in Everett Chemical Plant

Two alarms were sounded today for a fire which started in chemicals in a fireproof room of a building of the Monsanto Chemical Co., in Everett, causing thick clouds of smoke to roll high into the air

Company officials said there was no one in the room when the fire started and apparently the only damage would be in loss of chemicals. The room is used for manufacturing phthalic andrydride, a compound used for processing other chemicals.

Medford and Chelsea apparatus responded to the second alarm.

Flood Gives 1200 Pupils Holiday at E. Boston High

An unexpected holiday was granted today to 1200 boy and girl students at East Boston High School as a result of a flood in a third floor boy's washroom.

Headmaster Henry P. McLaughlin said the flood was caused by a defect in a meter mechanism in the washroom.

Barnes Rips Soviets At Hearing on Bill

Fundamental principles of the Communist Party include the necessity of achieving Soviet power in the United States, Atty.-Gen. Barnes today told the legislative committee on education at a hearing on his bill which would prohibit employment of all teachers who advocate violent overthrow of the government.

The Attorney General quoted from Marx and Stalin as sources for the belief that only by a violent overthrow of existing governments can the ideal of the international Communistic world be achieved.

Calling attention to the variety of statements on world policy which have come from outstanding Communists, Barnes again quoted, this time from Lenin, to prove that the members of the Communist party have been told that 'lies, deceit and treachery to the bourgeoisie, to capitalists and their governments all are justified in the sacred cause of the social revolution."

Barnes told the committee the same policy is followed by teachers tho are members of the party and they in their loyalty to a foreign master indoctrinate children with the ideas of Moscow.

"Does it seem wise or necessary that our school children should be taught that the way of life is to be class against class?" Barnes asked.

Anticipating arguments in opposition to his bill the Attorney General said it in no way violated a person's constitutional right to earn a living by teaching.

The courts, he pointed out, have said that public servants have no constitutional rights which set them above reasonable laws and regulations.

"A true Communist," Barnes said, "could not teach economics or philosophic subjects with honest objectivity. He is bound 24 hours a day to promote party doctrines."

'Public Can't Run My Life' --Ted Williams

Smiling and more amiable than ever before, Ted Williams came back to Boston today for a peek at his first-born—a 6-day-old girl who he says belongs to him and his wife and not to the baseball public.

The Red Sox slugger made it plain to a score of scribes who greeted him at Logan Airport that his wife, Doris Soule Williams, and his baby, Barbara Joyce Williams, are his personal life, and will forever remain as such.

"No one is going to run my life," Ted declared. "I'll pose and I always have posed, but no one is going to get any pictures of me holding my baby. I'm going over to Lying-In Hospital in the morning and have a look at my darling. It's quite a thrill to be a father."

STILL NECKTIELESS

Ted, necktieless as usual, shivered perceptibly as he chatted at length with reporters. He said the fishing in Florida was great and he was going back in a week's time for a bit more of it before he has to buckle down to spring training.

"Doris and the baby are going to stay with our friends, the Henry Johnsons of Newton, until I come north with the Sox," he continued. "We plan to stay with them during the playing season."

Asked what he though of the recent player deals made by the Red Sox management, Ted answered:

"Great. All we need now to win the pennant, is one more good pitcher."

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

He became wrathy only once, and that was when he was asked what he thought about the public criticism of him for going South to fish when his wife so soon expected to give birth to a baby.

"The public can go to the devil," he blurted. "That's one thing that's none of their business. After all, it's my baby. I repeat, they can all go to the devil."

Save 3 in Malden From Gas Fumes

Three members of a Malden family were saved from death by gas seeping into their home in Alden st. today.

David Shapiro, 30, told police he woke up feeling nauseated and detected the odor of gas. He attempted to arouse his mother, Mrs. Minnie Shapiro, 60, and his sister, Esther, 32, but was unsuccessful.

Police and firemen used inhalators to revive the two women who were then removed to Malden Hospital.

WATER MAIN BURSTS

Residents in a quarter-mile area in the Nantasket ave. section of Hull were deprived of water for hours, and cellars of many homes were flooded, when an estimated 2,000,000 gallons poured from a broken 8-inch main.

Two Survive As Car Heater Fumes Kill 3

MENDON, Vt., Feb. 2 — Two persons were recovering at Rutland Hospital today following a tragedy that took three lives by asphyxiation in a marooned automobile in 14 below zero weather.

Those who died were Mrs. Albert Tessier, 29, her son, Glen, 4, and Oliver Disorda, 29.

Recovering are Mrs. Norma Panoushek, 24, and Normand Damon, 50, found unconscious from fumes of the automobile heater.

Albert Tessier was driving his wife and son and three employes to his logging camp when the machine became marooned on the Wheelerville rd., four miles south of Rutland.

Tessier, a rugged woodsman who in World War II was torpedoed and clung two days to an iceberg before rescue, elected to tramp 11 miles to his camp to get help. On reaching the camp he sent Damon, an employe, in a light truck to rescue the marooned party. He lay down to rest.

But in the morning he sensed something must be wrong and hitched a team of horses to a sleigh and went back to the scene. His wife and son were dead in the car and the others unconscious. Disorda died later at Rutland Hospital.

On recovering, Damon said he he decided to get warm in the automobile before taking the party to the camp.

Madeleine Works For Democracy

Lovely Madeleine Carrol cast aside a million-dollar screen contract during the past war to go overseas with the Red Cross. Now she has new interests, acquired through war service in Africa, Italy and France.

Blonde Madeleine realizes that, although the shooting war is over much remains to be done in promoting understanding among the peoples of the world. And so, she has vowed that her future screen income will be used to further good will among the democratic nations.

The inspiring story of this unusual movie queen will be told in the article, "Madelein's Greatest Role," in next Sunday's American Weekly, magazine issued with the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Brookline Man Aids Palestine Blast Rescue

JERUSALEM, Feb. 2 (AP)—Police said today they were still unable to fix the blame for a bomb blast which wrecked the Palestine Post last night, injured at least 20 persons and touched off an $800,000 fire.

One Arab source said Arabs did it. Other informants blamed Jewish extremists who have threatened the pro-Zionist, English-language daily newspaper because of its moderate stand on Jewish defense.

Still other sources blamed Britons known for their anti-Jewish sentiments.

Two American citizens on the paper's staff were uninjured. They helped rescue seven fellow employes.

They are writer Dov Ben Abba, 30, of Kilsyth rd., Brookline, Mass., and Mordecai Chertoff, 20, of New York city, makeup editor.

Red Paper Denies Ukraine Uprising

MOSCOW, Feb 2 (INS) — The Communist newspaper Pravda denied Chinese reports of a large-scale anti-Soviet uprising in the Ukraine.

(On Jan. 23, Chen Li Fu, minister of party organization in the Chinese national government, said in Nanking his government had received reports of an uprising in which a 1,500,000 insurrectionists were involved.

(Two days later, Nikita S. Khrushchev, secretary of the Ukraine Communist party's central committee, admitted trouble in the Ukraine.)

Strip Death

State Police Chemist Joseph Walker for analysis.

Vinson told the following story to Dist. Atty. Dewing, State Police Lt. William H. Delay and Police Chief Leo Thompson:

He said he and Mrs. Clifford visited several taverns in Norwood and Walpole, and sometime before 11 p. m., they started home. He said they got out of a cab at Summit ave. and immediately, there was an argument.

Mrs. Clifford called him an obscene name, he said, and he struck her, causing her nose to bleed. He hit her a second time, he said, knocking her down. In falling, a boot slipped off her foot.

He put on the boot, and then they continued walking toward her home. On the way, she sat down once on a snowbank, he said. He took her to the driveway of the house where she lived, and she was more than halfway to the rear door when he left her, he said.

He then went to High Plane ave., where he took the 11:25 p. m. bus for Westwood. He told Chief Thompson he arrived at his house about 1 a. m.

The murder victim, who was employed at the Tobey plant in Canton, lived in the second floor apartment at 6 Old Post rd., with a son, Eugene Rafuse; a daughter Frieda, and the daughter's husband, Alfred Vinson. There is another daughter, Arline Rafuse. All three of Mrs. Clifford's children were of a first marriage.

In the downstairs apartment live George Cogswell, his wife and four children.

Mrs. Lucy Cogswell left that apartment shortly after 8 a. m. yesterday to hang some clothing over a line in the rear yard and spied the body of her upstairs neighbor lying in the drive. In the partially-denuded state, she was stretched on her back and her head and areas of her body were stained with congealed blood.

Mrs. Cogswell ran upstairs to the other apartment and told Mrs. Clifford's daughter and the latter's husband, who hastily notified police.

Marshall Plan Slash Looms

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) Congress appears to be getting ready to chop an $800,000,000 chunk off the starting cost of the Marshall Plan. A fight to cut even deeper is possible.

Chairman Bridges (R.) of New Hampshire, of the Senate appropriations committee said administration figures have convinced him there is no need to appropriate the full $6,800,000,000 asked by President Truman. That is the amount sought to operate the European recovery program for the first 15 months, beginning April 1.

Bridges cited testimony by State Dept. officials before the Senate foreign relations committee that about $800,000,000 of the total would go for goods which won't be shipped to Europe until after July 1, 1949.

There were indications that Bridges' view is shared by some Republican members of the House appropriations committee, where the cutting axe will fall first.

PICKWICK

"You know, my friend," says Tangy Hop
"The kind of luck that I would hail
Is fishing up upon my hook
A quart of ice-cold Pickwick Ale!"

Let's See What's Brewing

In brewing Ale, there is no single ingredient that's more important than another. All blend together to achieve the final product.

All, that is, except the yeast. Yeast plays its special part in the fermenting process, and is then completely removed from the Ale. Unlike hops, it must not even leave a trace of its flavor behind.

There are two types of brewing yeast—top yeast, used in Ale brewing, and bottom yeast, used to brew beer. When PICKWICK starts to ferment in its great steel, glass-lined vats, the yeast rises and is skimmed off by a mechanical skimmer inside the air-sealed vat. This prevents any possible contamination of the brew. Yeast is very sensitive to temperature changes, and must be stored at close to 32° F. to keep it from multiplying. While PICKWICK is undergoing fermentation our brew masters keep the brew under very exact temperature control. If the temperature rises too high, fermentation becomes violent, and the delicate flavor of the Ale is impaired. At low temperatures fermentation won't take place at all.

Every brewery has its own special strain of yeast, and we at PICKWICK, who have been practising the brewing art since 1870, believe we have developed the very finest top yeast in the world. At least, we know there is none other that could play its part better in helping to make PICKWICK The Ale With The Sparkling Clean Taste.

Nehru Stakes Rule On Giving India Peace

NEW DELHI, Feb. 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru told the Indian Constituent Assembly today that he accepted the restoration of peace in this troubled land as an issue on which his government would stand or fall.

"If we don't do that we are not worth being in this government; certainly not of being his (Mohandas K. Gandhi's) followers or even saying words of praise for this great soul," Nehru said.

"I have a sense of utter shame as an individual and as the head of the government that we should have failed to protect the greatest treasure we possess."

Later at the services beside the Jumna, a throng of 5000 watched quietly as the ashes were sifted. One object was handed to Nehru and witnesses speculated it might have been one of the bullets which struck Gandhi Friday night.

On the banks of the Jumna, meanwhile, the ashes of the assassinated Gandhi were reverently collected and prepared for scattering on waters sacred to orthodox Hinduism.

LOOK WHO'S TALKING

THE PROTEST registered by Soviet Russia against reactivation of an American air base in Libya is proof enough of the wisdom of the American decision in the matter, and the Government of the United States should not only reject the Russian protest but proceed with all speed to put the base in operation.

It is a sardonic case of "look who's talking" when Soviet Russia objects to this action as a violation of the Italian peace treaty and as an infringement upon Italian sovereignty, for no other power in world history has ever been more contemptuous of treaties than Russia or more prolific in making infringements upon the sovereignty of weaker governments.

Of course the American action in this instance is nothing of the sort, the contemplated reactivation having no element of menace whatever to Italian interests or sovereignty.

But even if there were such menace in the situation, Soviet Russia would hardly be in a position to come into court with clean hands to protest the matter.

THE REAL REASON Soviet Russia objects to reactivation of the American-built Mellaha air base near Tripoli is that the Russian government has aggressive and imperialistic intentions against all the nations in the Mediterranean basin, and the presence of a formidable American air base in the area will be an obstruction to those intentions.

In other words, it is a case of the big bad wolf, thinking itself loose and unopposed among the helpless sheep, suddenly confronted by the shepherd; whereupon the frustrated wolf, conscious of its own motives, accuses the shepherd of the same motives.

The truth of the matter is that Soviet Russia has neither present nor historic interest in the Mediterranean basin, and has no legitimate aspiration to future interest there; but is only seeking to keep American military establishments out of the area in order to have a free hand in the future to pursue her imperialistic objectives against not only Italy, but against the whole fringe of Mediterranean nations and especially against Greece and the Turkish Straits.

Soviet Russia is already in substantial power in several Mediterranean states by virtue of her contempt of treaties and infringement upon sovereignty, having reduced Yugoslavia and Albania to puppet status, and she has only recently attempted to set up a similar despotism in Italy and France; failing at least temporarily in the effort, but not desisting from it.

America, on the other hand, has a very real interest and an entirely proper right in the Libyan air base, having constructed it at great cost during the war after the region had been wrested from Italy, which was not then an ally or a neutral but an active and very dangerous enemy.

IT IS TRUE that the status of Italy has changed greatly since that time, not only in consequence of her subsequent defeat in the war but also through her substantial contributions to Allied victory in the concluding phases of the war. It is likewise true that Italy, despite the ensuing peace, still finds herself in a menacing situation.

But the nature of Italy's continuing menace, in common with an identical menace shadowing the whole of Europe, is not suggested by American policies which are purely rehabilitory in scope and purpose, but by SOVIET RUSSIA'S CONTINUING AND EXPANDING PROGRAM OF AGGRESSION AND CONQUEST.

America is not only sincerely committed to and concerned with the rehabilitation of Europe, but is pursuing that idealistic aim with enormous sacrifice of her by no means inexhaustible resources and at grave risk of her own future peace and security.

The reactivation of the Libyan air base is a wise move and a necessary one, as the Russian protest abundantly proves.

But thoughts like these are idle things
And I stay here,
But in my dreams to you I fly.
I'm always with you in my dreams
Then the world is all one's own,
But then one wakes, and where am I?
All, all alone

—COLERIDGE.

A POINT RECENTLY brought up by the Panama sportsman, Raoul Espinosa, greatly interested me. Raoul expressed the view that animals and plants benefit greatly from growing on ocean islands. Consider the Jersey and Guernsey milk cows said he. Also Sumatra coffee. And English and Irish horses. There seems to be no doubt Senor Espinosa is in the possession of something. I believe I will have my ranch, when I get a ranch, on an ocean island. So don't be amazed if a few years from now you see advertised: "Milk from contented Durling Island cows" and "Durling Island Coffee," or a headline reading "Always Trying, the Durling Island Bred Horse, wins $100,000 Handicap."

NAMING BABIES: The objection of a British minister to officiating at the christening of children named after movie stars, race-horses or battles inspired the question as to what famous and successful people had been so named. Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, late "czar of baseball," was named after the Civil War Battle of Kenesaw Mountain, in which his father took part.

Kenesaw M. Landis

ANOTHER CANDIDATE: It is reported a Los Angeles resident named Barrow Sparrow is being groomed to oppose Truly Dooley of Providence, R. I., and Herman Berman Sherman of New York city, in the campaign for president of the My Name Is a Poem Club. The campaign appears to be getting really hot

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q—Of the smaller breed of dogs which would you say has the most courage and fighting instinct? A—My nomination would be the Pekinese. These tiny dogs will give battle to canines of any size, not excluding Great Danes and St. Bernards. Q—Caption beneath news photo of Revelry, an entry in the Grand National, states it is an "American horse." You once stated this animal was an Irish horse. A—I still think I am right. I also believe Revelry will win the Grand National.

HORSES AND WOMEN: As matrimonial material plane hostesses seem greatly in demand. Our Horses and Women experts have done a little research on the comparative conduct of the airline queens before and after marriage. We are pleased to state that in most cases their kindness, consideration, good humor and general efficiency in the treatment of the male of the species on plane trips is carried on into married life. Among the many happy spouses of erstwhile plane hostesses is Eddie Peabody, the banjo player. Eddie married the airline beauty because he was impressed by her tender handling of passengers. She married him because she liked the way he played and sang "Yellow Rose of Texas."

CHECKING: The checking up on items appearing in this pillar of palpitating prose is terrific. I may have to give up the stogie wagering idea. I have just made an inquiry as to the price of stogies by the barrel insted of the box to see if I can afford to carry on. To show you what I am up against, I stated that in the Zulu language "oogy wawa" meant "here's how!" and could be used for a toast. And so what? A Californian, who says he has lived with the Zulus and in addition has a Zulu dictionary, says the way to say "here's how" in that language is not "oogy wawa" but "teewoordig is hor." And he demands a stogie!

PLEASE NOTE: The confidence of the clientele in my fund of information is extremely flattering. However, at times some of the trusting readers cover much too much ground for me. As for example, a hospital nurse of Los Angeles asks: "Where, oh, where can we nurses buy white run-proof mesh nylon hosiery? In our work we walk at least four and a half miles a day and the possibility of a run in a stocking is an irritating menace."

ASIDES: As to calling the Purdue football team the "Boilermakers," am informed they were so nicknamed because the university they represent is primarily an engineering school. Among the trips I have always wanted to take but never have is one down the Mississippi on a river boat. As, for example, from Cincinnati to New Orleans. Think of the romantic and historic stops on that trip; Louisville, Paducah, Memphis, Vicksburg, Natchez, Baton Rouge and New Orleans.

"It's all right, waiter—they're only fighting for the check!"

THESE DAYS

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1948, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

SINCE THE DAY of Alexander Hamilton, the tariff has been a sovereign activity of the United States, the Congress determining what it should be and in what manner it is to be collected. This phase of American sovereignty has now been delegated to 17 nations, including debtors to the United States.

George Sokolsky

Apart from the United States, these countries are Great Britain, Canada, India, Australia, Union of South Africa, New Zealand, Belgium-Luxembourg-Netherlands (known as Benelux), Brazil, Chile, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, France, Norway, Lebanon. Soviet Russia declined to join.

The 17 nations have held a number of meetings, the principal ones being at Geneva and Havana. At Geneva, they drew up a document which they call a charter, the effect of which transfers tariff-making from the Congress of the United States to this body of debtor nations.

Of course, that would be unconstitutional, so the device used is the trade agreement act of 1934, since extended up to June 12, 1948, conferring upon the President the right to reduce the tariff under certain specific conditions.

THE PRESIDENT can proclaim certain tariff changes as though they originated with him. Actually, they are a result of the conferences among these 17 nations and are part of a general agreement reached by the International Trade Organization (ITO) of the United Nations.

The decisions of ITO thus become the law of the land. Congress has thus abrogated an important part of American sovereignty.

The Geneva agreement affects about 3600 tariff rates.

The gist of the matter is that a tariff policy is being fixed for the United States by its debtors at a time when no one can correctly determine what the economic situation of the world will be a month hence.

Clair Wilcox, director of the Office of International Trade Policy of the State Dept., makes this point in a defense of ITO:

". . . Political co-operation among nations remains in jeopardy as long as individual nations feel free to wage economic warfare with weapons of their own choosing and rules of their own making."

Completely at the mercy of its debtors, it is particularly difficult to understand why the United States should have to make all the sacrifices. The other countries made it clear that they could not go along with the ITO program unless we cut our tariff—so we cut our tariff.

Unquestionably the State Dept. by-passed Congress. The entire subject requires detailed investigation by Congress. Certainly the trade agreement law, which expires on June 12, 1948, ought not and probably will not be renewed. Meanwhile, business and labor, which face wild competition from socialized and low-wage countries, ought to consider their interests.

Russians Ordered Not To Talk to Foreigners Under New Soviet Ban

MOSCOW, Jan. 28 (By United Press)—The Soviet government prohibited Russians from talking to foreigners today and designated Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's Foreign Office as the sole clearing house for contact with the outside world.

The only exceptions to the blanket decree were the Ministry of Foreign Trade, which may handle foreign contacts with permission of the Foreign Office, and such working people as clerks, waiters and ticket sellers.

The clerks and waiters, however, were warned they must restrict their conversations with foreigners to the "limits of their usual functions" on penalty of prosecution under the criminal code.

Punishment was not specified.

Any Soviet official other than those in the foreign ministry approached personally by a foreign diplomat must not discuss the question asked. Answers must be limited to an explanation that the inquiry must be directed to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The decree was passed Dec. 16 by order of the Supreme Soviet to tighten state security. It was published yesterday in the official gazette.

The decree provides that all prerepresentations made by foreign nations or individuals, regardless of their nature, must be handled only by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2—If Greer Garson ever does anything sc undignified as clicking her heels, she has good cause for it today. Compton Bennett, often called England's top director (he did "Seventh Veil"), is coming back here to direct her in "Forsyte Saga," John Galsworthy's wonderful novel, or shall I say novels?

Personally I think this combination may be the answer to all Greer's troubles. She was an unhappy girl last year about some of her assignments but she and Bennett should speak the same language, and he is perfect to direct such a typical English story.

The British director was brought over here last year by Universal-International. When they couldn't find just the right story for him he moved over to Paramount, where he made "My Own True Love" with Phyllis Calvert, Wanda Hendrix and Melvyn Douglas.

But his movie with Greer will be his first trip to MGM.

IT WILL BE three months before Clark Gable's leg will be sufficiently strong for him to return to MGM studios. He will consult with Dr. John Wilson but I don't think it is likely he will be able to work at the studios.

When Clark is well enough to make pictures, as we told you, he'll star in "Angel's Flight" and he'll have Sam Wood as his director. I had thought Sam probably would direct Greer Garson first, but it seems he's slated to direct "Angel's Flight," which Sam Zimbalist is producing.

FAYE EMERSON ROOSEVELT is toying with the idea of starring in "Winter Kill" on the stage. She talked over the long-distance telephone with Frank Gruber, who collaborated with Steve Fisher in writing the play, and said she would cancel the trip she and Elliott had planned to South America if "Winter Kill" is the right play for her.

It will be presented here at the Biltmore Theater with Dick Arlen in the male lead, and has been bought for pictures by Michael Curtiz, who some time ago announced it was intended for Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall.

Bogey is crazy about "Treasure of Sierra Madre," even though his pals tell him he should be more romantic and not look as if he is the man the world forgot.

I HAD quite a talk with Lilli Palmer, who, with Rex Harrison, returned from England on Friday.

Lilli said, "I want to thank you for not believing those reports that I had talked against American columnists. How could I when I didn't give out one interview all the time I was in London?

Lilli Palmer

"I was very glad to see all our friends in England—it's such a brave little nation but I am delighted to be back in this wonderful sunshine."

Lilli said it was an outrage that anyone should have said Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier were having matrimonial trouble. She and Rex visited them and they were very happy.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Remember when Jimmy Stewart was seen in New York practically every evening with Dorothy Ford, the glamorous "glamazon"? Now Dorothy is in Hollywood at Warner Brothers, working on an adjoining stage to Jimmy. He is in "Rope," and she has a part in "One Sunday Afternoon."

Jimmy takes her to luncheon practically every day, and they seem to be having a very good time, but I refuse to believe it's a romance even though others say so.

Contrary to printed reports that David Selznick had given a lavish party in honor of Jennifer Jones, it was for Jock Whitney, and they don't look anything alike. Jennifer is due in London this week, but I had a chatty letter from a spy in Paris, telling me about her supposedly "secret" visit there.

"Jennifer left her two sons in St. Moritz, and accompanied by her secretary, registered at the Lancaster Hotel under her real name of Phyllis Walker. But as she cannot speak a single word of French," my informant continues, "she tried to find some English-speaking friends, among them, Paulette Goddard.

"She called the United Artists office asking about Paulette but they wouldn't give her any information, saying they never heard of Phyllis Walker, and hung up.

"Then what happens? She steps outside her suite and there opening the door across the hall is Paulette."

Freddie De Cordova, the good looking director who used to take Deanna Durbin out before she married Felix Jackson, will direct her in "White House Girl."

Could be this romance will resume, because he certainly liked her when they used to go dancing. Freddie is one of the most attractive of the gents remaining on the eligible list in Hollywood.

Yes, this means he has bowed out of his Warner Brothers contract, for of course the Durbin movie will be made at Universal-International.

It's wonderful to see David Niven so happy again. He and his beautiful bride are back in David's home. Their train was almost a day late, so that many of his pals who expected to meet him weren't on hand.

The new Mrs. Niven is tall, fair, and beautiful, but David says he wants a normal home life and that his wife is not interested in making pictures.

She will be a great addition to Hollywood and all David's friends are eager to meet her.

Joe Glaston, praise agent for Bud Abbott and Lou Costello and one of our happiest bachelors, is taking unto himself a wife. In mid-February he is marrying Mrs. Maxine Klimek, a non-professional, at the home of the Costellos. Says Joe:

"I'm to have two best men for the price of one, meaning, of course, Bud and Lou. For, after being Abbott and Costello's press agent for 10 years, I couldn't ask one and not the other to officiate at my wedding. Superior Court Judge William B. McKesson will tie the knot."

And just one more thing about the two comics. Charles Tucker, who has been Bebe Daniels' and Ben Lyon's guest, has signed them up to make "Bring 'Em Back Dead" in England.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Good for Louis Hayward—he's been taking a pre-medical course at the University of San Francisco and is studying to be a doctor.

John De Garter, heir to the Pelta fur fortune, is marrying Noreen Blake, advertising agency secretary, on March 10.

A romance that will bear watching is that of Shelley Winters, who played the waitress in "Double Life" and got lots of cheers, and John Ireland.

Betty Hensel, who was once Cary Grant's heartbeat, was at the airport to meet Albert E. Schwabacker, San Francisco businessman, when he arrived in town a few days ago.

Walter Kane with Marguerite Chapman at the Mocambo. It was her first date since her return from Honolulu, and one of Walter's first since his illness.

Marguerite Chapman

Bob Topping and Lana Turner quietly having dinner at Le Papillon. They haven't been doing much night clubbing since all the publicity.

At another table Lina Romay and Lew Ayres. That's a new twosome, isn't it?

Sylvia Wallace, at one time western editor of Modern Screen Magazine, and her husband Irving Wallace, brilliant magazine writer, are expecting a baby any day.

I talked with Jimmy Fidler and he says he is still fighting for the custody of his adopted daughter, and he thinks he's right.

Artie Shaw has moved out of the Sulgrave Apartments and into the Mayflower Hotel while Kathleen Winsor stays behind. So it looks like another separation.

Wendy Barrie has become a grandmother — a step-grandmother, that is. The daughter of her husband, David L. Meyer, had a child last week.

Sonia Henie isn't seen any more in New York with Michael Kirby since the newspapers said he was married. Her new escort is another young man from her skating show.

It is said Kay Thompson will do Irving Berlin's new Broadway show which he is now writing with Norman Krasna.

The other car in the Corinne Calvay auto accident belongs to Linda Darnell's mother. Mrs. Darnell tells me her car was completely smashed and will take six weeks to fix.

Harry Warner will be a grandfather three times. All three of his daughters have made a date with the stork—Mrs. Charles Vidor, Mrs. Milton Sperling and his adopted daughter, Lita, who is married to Dr. Nathan Hyatt.

My Boston

By Alan Frazer

LOOKING AROUND: The hit-skip driver who smashed a parked car under the State House arch Saturday afternoon can save himself a headache by getting in touch with the capitol police. His number was reported by a witness in a window. The car was damaged about $75 worth. It belongs to a State official . . . The popular musical "Carousel" returns to Boston March 1 . . . Lt. Com. Frederic W. Taylor, employed by the Veterans' Administration as a consulting surgeon, raps hospitalization of non-service connected cases as a "grab," in the current Harper's . . . And Time gives nearly four pages to Canada's figure-skating queen, Barbara Ann Scott, but only one-third of a sentence to Boston's Gretchen Merrill, who competes against Barbara Ann in the winter Olympics this week . . . P. A. O'Connell, installed as president of the Clover Club Saturday night, has been a member for 45 of the club's 65 years . . . Before he was installed, P. A. was asked if he was descended from an Irish king. He replied: "From 100 of them, and also from some queens!" . . . The club gave Joe McCarthy a warm welcome but sang: "If Muc's Fenway wonders make too many blunders, the Clovers will soon step in."

SEEN AND HEARD: Boston hotels may offer a week-end "package" (room, meals, sporting events, shows, sight-seeing) to lure guests into the vacant space now available between Fridays and Mondays . . . Ray Staffier, a nifty dancer who will probably make the big time when he's older, is starred in the Mission Hill Minstrels tonight at James P. Timilty School . . . Dr. Maxwell Maltz, author of "Doctor Social," had the dialogue exported by Alben Kandell in Hollywood. Then Don Appell, the director, and Harold Barnard, producer, worked it over with Kandell . . . The fictional Estry, listed as the author on the programs, was cooked-up from the name of an actress originally scheduled for a leading role: Sybil Tree (S. Tree). The Joseph L. was just dreamed-up . . . Jerry Austen and Betty Jane Watson, Oval Room singers, were dinner guests yesterday of Ernie Henderson, head of the Sheraton enterprises, at his home in Lincoln . . . Revere's Domenic Restano, new exec. secy. of the Massachusetts Council, K. of C., will be feted next Sunday evening at the Boston City Club . . . Mollie Dooley, this column's seeing-eye in the not-so-sunny South, says a Florida woman keeps check on her husband all day by short-wave radio.

FOOTLIGHTS IN THE PAST: Harry Doyle of Everett recalls opera at the old Boston Theater on Washington st., with Melba, the de Reszke brothers, Paul Plancon, Calve and Tetrazzini. Also Julia Arthur in "Empress Josephine," Sarah Bernhardt in "Fedora," and Montgomery and Stone in "The Wizard of Oz," with Alene Crater, later Mrs. Stone . . . At the Boston Museum, Madge Lessing in "Jack and the Beanstalk," and in the saloon window across the street a life-size photo of Madge in tights . . . Harry saw Mrs. Fiske in "Becky Sharp" and Jack Mason in "Leah Kleshna" at the Tremont, and Edna May in "The Belle of New York" at the Park . . . Maxine Elliott, he says, was a beauty but not a very good actress. He saw her at the Hollis Street. At the same theater Sir John Hare and Irene Vanbrugh in "The Gay Lord Quex" . . . "I think Queen Victoria died during that engagement, and the programs were bordered in black," he writes. "Frances Starr opened at the Hollis in 'The Easiest Way.' After three nights, they closed the theater, the show being too 'hot' for Boston. Today that play would be a Bible story compared to some of the plays they're showing" . . . Harry also saw John Drew and Billie Burke and later with Mary Boland, at the Hollis, and Lillian Russell there in "Wildfire."

STORIES TOLD around town: Jumping Joe Dugan told us at the Music Box that he was sitting with Harry Heilman and Rogers Hornsby during the World Series. Heilman had a lifetime batting average of .342 and Hornsby .358. Good as he was, Joe was hardly in their class as a hitter . . . Somebody passed around a ball to be autographed. Hornsby signed first, then Heilman. When it reached Joe, he quipped: "Batting third am I? OK, you birds see if you can get on and I'll drive you in!" . . . Joe Geary, often called Boston's No. 1 fan, remarked that Joe McCarthy won't stand for what's politely called temperament. One day when McCarthy was managing the Yanks, Geary asked him why he let Johnny Allen go. For all his roistering, Johnny was a great pitcher. McCarthy replied: "It's tough enough running a team in the afternoon without having to manage it after 6 p. m." . . . Dennis Delaney, at the Latin Quarter with his missus, relaxing from the March of Dimes campaign, said he booked Dunninger, the mind reader, for the Garden ball one year. Dunninger hadn't shown up so Dennis sent John Burns, asst. internal revenue collector, to try to intercept him in the lobby and hurry him up . . . Burns no sooner reached the lobby than Dunninger stepped up to him and said "You're looking for me." . . . John is one man who believes Dunninger really can read your mind.

ABOUT PEOPLE AND THINGS: Bob Ripley, who asks you to believe it or not, is dickering to buy the large estate of the late Joseph Widener at Palm Beach . . . Sheldon Fairbanks, who is staging that Sportsmen's Show at Mechanics, is putting on similar shows this season in N. Y., Toronto, Albany, Rochester, Syracuse, Detroit, Washington, Baltimore and other cities . . . Massachusetts (which, as we told you, has no exhibit) promises to have one in next year's show here, and one at next year's N. Y. show, too . . . Frank Kelly, ex-lt. gov., points out that three things he fought for long ago are now under serious discussion on Beacon Hill: Reduction of the old-age minimum from 65 to 60 years, a State lottery to finance old-age assistance, and public meetings of the Governor's Council . . . Excuse it! If you received $500 or more income last year, you are supposed to file a Federal return, whether you're an adult or a minor.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Members of Congress are being pelted with snowballs—and it's only because I was taught to be factual that I can force myself to repeat the rude and ribald jibe accompanying them.

These snowballs are being hurled by veterans going to school under the GI Bill of Rights. I don't know who thought up the idea in the first place, unless it was that cute little brat up the street from us, but it is very demonstrative.

The snowballs are not really made of snow because this would be impractical. The recipients get too hot when they get smacked and the missile would go up in steam. They are made of a salt-like composition but are excellent imitations.

They come daily from GI's who are trying to struggle along on the present subsistence pay—$65 a month for single guys and $90 for those who got trapped. Attached to each snowball is a tag reading:

"We don't stand the chance of a snowball in hell to live on our present subsistence."

I SEE WHERE the British are very irked with Miss Loretta Young, of the movies, for being sorry for them.

In her spasms of sanguinary leakage, Miss Young told of meeting a big business executive with cardboard soles in his shoes; a prominent journalist who had no overcoat and shivered all over her suite in a summer gabardine, and of practically everybody going around polite and haggard because they didn't have enough energy to be rude and truly British.

But instead of being moved by the lady's sympathy the British somehow summoned enough energy to be provoked.

IT SO HAPPENS that I knew of Miss Young's Anglophilian bloodsweating at first hand because I attended a cocktail party in her honor in New York the day after she landed. She told me at great length how her heart had been wrung but I refrained from printing any of it because our compositors are so tender-hearted I knew they would erupt into tears and get the type all smeary.

And now it turns out it was all in vain. The British are doing fine—what ho, pip-pip, cheerio, leg before wicket, and all that sort of thing. It must be frightfully embarrassing to Miss Young, what?

dences of having been used to inflict the gash on Mrs. Huntington's head.

When found, she was lying on her right side with blood spattered over the room and even on the ceiling, and with a blood-saturated towel over her face.

From the marks on Miss Gallagher's neck it was believed she might have been strangled with a cord.

LONG IN ILL HEALTH

Police said although Huntington was believed to be a total abstainer, they found a half bottle of cognac with a glass and pipe near the fireplace.

It was disclosed that Huntington has been under medical treatment for high blood pressure and only returned to his office last Tuesday after having been at home since Jan. 1. Police said an inventory was being made at his store yesterday.

Dr. Arthur Sullivan of Braintree, who was called, pronounced all three dead and said as far as he could determine their deaths took place probably between 1 a. m. and 3 a. m.

According to neighbors Huntington had been in poor health for some time and had been confined to his home for more than a week.

UN Hears Grim Holy Land Report

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Security Council today received its first formal report on the Palestine partition plan as a serious difficulty.

The critical situation in the Holy Land was laid before the 11-nation council in a grim report by the UN Palestine Commission.

The report covered the last month's work of the Five-Nation Commission, which has responsibility for carrying out the plan to carve Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish countries. Its first report made it clear the Commission had little hope of succeeding without help from the Council.

Farnum Rallies Pet Owners In Fight on Vivisection Bill

Household pets which become lost face days of suffering and eventual death at the hands of vivisectionists under the terms of a bill now before the state legislature.

Known as the Nolen-Miles Bill, Senate 264, the bill provides for delivery to experimenters on live animals, all cats and dogs picked up by the Animal Rescue League in Boston, and by the keepers of every dog pound in the state, if such animals are not claimed by their owners within six days.

George R. Farnum, president of the New England Anti-Vivisection Society, has branded this bill "monstrous."

RALLY PET OWNERS

Every owner of a pet is urged to fight this bill, which would make places which once served as refuges for stray animals nothing more than public collection agencies for experimenters.

Farnum, a former assistant attorney-general, yesterday called on every pet owner in the state to write to members of the legislature in opposition to the bill.

"We are faced with a perennial fight against those who regard animals soley as a means for furthering their own experimental studies," Farnum said. "These people apparently never look upon a cat or a dog as a source of happiness to others.

"Think of all the sorrow which would ensue if a household pet should, under this proposed law, fall into the hands of vivisectionists.

BLACKEST CRIME

"At the present moment, when all the world is mourning Mahatma Gandhi, the great religious leader of India, I would like to recall what he once said on vivisection.

"Speaking at the dedication of Tibbi Medical College in Delhi, Gandhi said: 'Vivisection, in my opinion, is the blackest of all the black crimes that man is now committing against God and His fair creation. It ill becomes us to make in our daily prayers pleas of compassion to God when we will not ourselves practice compassion toward our fellow creatures.'

"I sincerely hope that everyone who himself seeks compassion, will have compassion on our dumb animals, and raise his voice in protest against the Nolen-Miles bill."

Public hearings on the bill will be held at the State House on Tuesday, Feb. 24

Red Cross Gives Clothing To Burned-Out Family of 7

A North Saugus family of seven who lost their home and world possessions in a fire that drove them barefoot into snow and near-zero temperature were furnished clothing today by the Red Cross before taking temporary refuge with relatives in New Hampshire.

William Lyle, only recently returned from a hospital to his home in Bow st., discovered the blaze. He awakened his wife, Eunice, and their five children, and all escaped in night attire. The children are Kenneth, 14; Robert, 12; William, 11, and Donald and Jerry, 9.

Five Masked Bandits Sought in R. I. Robbery

WARREN, R. I., Feb. 2—Five masked and armed men, whose height ranged from five feet to six feet three inches, were sought today for a $15 robbery at the home of Luigi Duratoro, 73, of Greenlawn ave.

Entering the house by the ruse they bore a message from the victim's daughter, the men tied Duratoro to a kitchen chair and then ransacked the house. They also carried off a pair of gloves, a suit and a revolver.

Russian 'Wonder Submarine' Worries U. S. Sea Strategists

By DAVID SENTNER
Special Cable Dispatch to the Boston American

ANCON, Canal Zone, Feb. 2—The top military command in Washington has received confirmation that Russia is producing a new giant submarine, it was learned from a reliable source here.

The craft is said to be capable of phenomenal underwater speed with the ability to run submerged for days, perhaps weeks.

News of the confirmation has created a sensation among Washington high defense strategists.

The new Soviet submarine is referred to secretly by intelligence as Moby Ivan, a slang derivation of Moby Dick, the sinister whale of fiction.

Moby Ivan is reported capable of 17 knots under water, the speed of a modern commercial surface vessel.

CREATED BY GERMANS

The undersea craft is said to be the result of the work of a captive German naval research staff which has been working in isolated shops and on testing grounds on a Soviet island in the Baltic sea.

Navy submarine experts in the Canal Zone conjecture the designers of Moby Ivan have found a way of expanding the German Schnorkel device of permitting underwater navigation with surface engine propulsion through the intake of air from a long tube.

However, the Schnorkel method to date necessitates the submarine cruising close to the surface while the Moby Ivan is reportedly able to travel fathoms below, perhaps beyond the range of submarine detecting apparatus.

CAPITAL DISTURBED

The British recently succeeded in submerging the submarine Alliance for several weeks, but there has been no announcement of British or American success in producing underwater cruising during that period.

Perturbation of Washington officialdom regarding the new Soviet submarine is based on the realization that it provides navyless Russia with a sea striking force, balancing her huge land and aviation forces.

If performances of the new sub are confirmed, it is seen as revolutionizing American naval strategy.

Dr. Holmes Terms Gandhi Greatest Man Since Christ

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (INS)—Dr. Joan Haynes Holmes led nonsectarian memorial services for Mohandas K. Gandhi and told 1600 mourners that India's spiritual leader was "the greatest man the world has seen since Jesus Christ." He told the New York Community Church congregation:

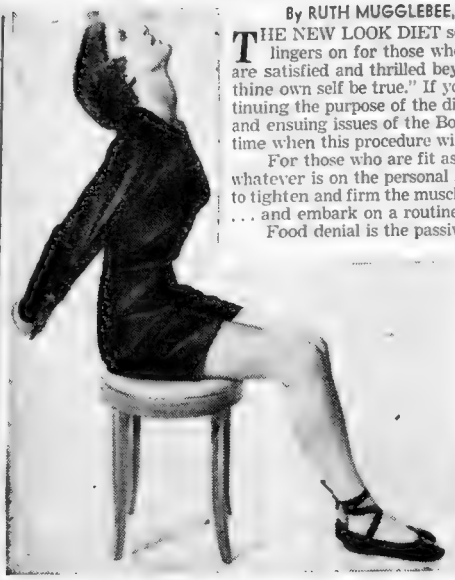
Exercises for Dieters

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor



THE NEW LOOK DIET series has ended but its memory lingers on for those who happily completed it . . . and are satisfied and thrilled beyond words that they could "to thine own self be true." If you are still in the throes of continuing the purpose of the diet series . . . tuck away today's and ensuing issues of the Boston Evening American for the time when this procedure will be right for you, also.

For those who are fit as a fiddle and ready for . . . well whatever is on the personal schedule . . . the time has come to tighten and firm the muscles . . . eliminate flesh flabbiness . . . and embark on a routine of active reducing

Food denial is the passive way to lose pounds . . . exercise, the active way. Both are dovetailed. For after weight has been lost, there must be a general toning up of the muscular body lest flabby softness take hold

When a loss of weight causes flabby contours of the facial muscles . . . like a sagging chinline and loose and fleshy jowls . . . there are always specific cosmetics to firm them, get them into line, sculpture them into chiseled smoothness and youthful tightness. Well, cosmetics can't be applied to the muscles of the body in that way to tighten those fat-depleted spots . . . to firm the deflated bulges . . . to smooth those contours into upholding smoothness.

But exercise can . . . and does do it. We've combed the beauty salons for specific exercises . . . the kind which they mete out to the mink and sable gals who lose weight but not the figure of femininity . . . and they've responded generously to the call.

These exercises differ from those we prescribed during the dieting regime. They are a bit more strenuous . . . but, by now, you can take it.

TWIRLS AND TWISTS

At the Richard Hudnut DuBarry Success Course in New York where they teach a woman to look like, live like, eat like and act like a beauty, Miss Ann Delafield prescribes a course of three twirls and twists that accent the vital body spots for a strategic strengthening of important muscles.

Neck and shoulders usually suffer when they've lost their extra pound of unwanted fat. The loose flesh can almost be lifted up high away from the body frame. So today, we'd concentrate on that area.

Here is the No. 1 exercise evolved by Miss Delafield for a lovelier neck and shoulders after reducing:

Sit on a bench or stool. Push back with your spine at your waist line. Clasp hands behind neck and turn palms toward floor. Bend head backward and raise arms up toward ceiling. Be sure not to arch your back. Hold it's position to the count of 10. Relax. Repeat 10 times.

Do this exercise every day until you, yourself, can feel the muscles of the neck and shoulders firm and the flesh sound.

In tomorrow's Boston American, We'll outline the No. 2 salon-exclusive exercise for developing the chestline, fashion's newest by-word for femininity.

VALENTINE'S DAY, the essence of romantic tradition with all its offerings of love expressions, will soon be here . . . but, usually, the girl who looks a little like the lovely Ellen Drew gets all the encomiums, package-wrapped or delivered . . . because she inspires the sweet whisperings attendant on the world's oldest story. A kitten-soft, radiant complexion is beauty's battle half-won.

FOR LOVELIER neck and shoulders in your NEW LOOK figure for the new look clothes . . . do as this New DuBarry Success Course beauty is doing . . . and do it 10 times daily, either morning or night!

When-Bridal Is Canceled

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I had planned to be married in a few weeks and many of the wedding plans had been made. Now I have decided that it is necessary that I break the engagement. Fortunately, most of the wedding arrangements can be canceled, and this I have done. But my attendants —maid of honor and four bridesmaids—have already bought and paid for the dresses I chose for them. (Fortunately I had not ordered their headdresses, which I had planned to give them.)

Mother thinks I should reimburse each girl for the entire amount she spent for her dress. I think this is unnecessary as that at the most I should just offer to share perhaps half the cost. What is your judgment? EX-FIANCE

Your mother has the only fair and just point of view . . . certainly it is not the fault of the attendants that they are left "holding the bag," and you should be unwilling to penalize them because of your misfortune. Most definitely you should take it for granted that you are to reimburse each girl in the full amount she paid for her dress since you know what this cost is, you will not even have to discuss it with the girl who naturally might be embarrassed by any discussion of this necessary reimbursement.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Last year, during a quite long illness of mine a dear friend of mine was married. I was not able at that time to send her a wedding present . . . and now it's time for them to celebrate their first wedding anniversary. Shall I now send them a belated wedding present or something that would be appropriate for an anniversary present?

Cara B. D.

You will now have a good and wide choice of something that would be more or less a combination present for wedding and anniversary, a good-looking practical something that you are sure they will welcome. And the note you should write to enclose with this present should gracefully explain the "combination."

7-Day Beauty Treatment That Pays Big Dividends

SOME OF THE BEST THINGS in life are free, we know . . . but very often you have to pay a little to achieve something that helps you to enjoy more pleasurably those "best free things in life." Like a cosmetic that satisfactorily underwrites facial success.

Did anybody ever tell you that you can get most things you want in this world if you try hard enough? Well, to a point, that's right. But only to a point . . . and that point, as far as a beautiful complexion is concerned, is where you give a little of yourself and your time. Yes, your time plus the cosmetic that become an unbeatable combination in realizing for your fond hopes and wishes a skin lovely to look at, delightful to see."

There's very little sense in indulging in platitudes in discussing a fine complexion. You and I both know we want one . . . we need one . . . we must have one if we are to rate at all in the feminine competition. So with this an assured declaration . . . let's see how we should go about making it apparent!

A week is not such a long time to set aside . . . yet that is all we ask of your time to help you prove to yourself that a new complexion can be yours. If it is dull, or sallow . . . a simple treatment predicated on a gentle meal-like powder can be the means to the desired end. In a famous New York personality plus school where charm is the top rater . . . this simple cosmetic preparation is the compulsory preliminary to which every girl must subscribe in the facial remake course.

USE IT FOR A WEEK

For one short week . . . seven days . . . each girl exposes her complexion with this meal-like powder transformed into a paste when contacted with tepid water. Smoothed over the countenance . . . it gets below the surface to force extraneous waste matter from the pores . . . to stimulate circulation . . . to whip a fresh supply of blood into the facial tissues. It is not washed off . . . but turkish-towelled off . . . so that the dead cuticle is flaked off enabling the reappearance of a new, glowing, healthy skin

Any skin type can use it . . . oily or dry. The latter uses a softening cream in addition, however, after the deep-pore penetration of this preparation is completed. The gentle abrasion of this powder-paste rubs off all the superficial impurities . . . and because it spanks the complexion into a new behavior pattern, beauty-wise . . . produces what could almost be called a new skin

Could you give your complexion seven better beauty days?

—R. M.

Answering Beauty Queries

DEAR MISS MUGGLEBEE: My fingernails have started their annual wintertime split and peel campaign. Please tell me what to do.

OLGA B., Belmont.

Dear Olga: This aggravating condition happens to the best of nails, especially at this time of year. Usually it is a warning signal that the horny extensions thirst for lubrication. A local shop, specializing in oil manicures, uses one of the best oils on the market, which when consistently fed the fingernails prevents almost entirely any tendency to splitting, cracking, peeling or brittleness. And it may be purchased for home use.

Daily for a week, pour a small quantity of the oil in a tiny container and dip each fingertip separately, letting the finger remain at least for several minutes. Not only massage the oil into the cuticle but with an orange-stick apply it under the nail as well. No cuticle remover is needed if you use this type of oil, for it does away with hangnails as a natural part of its efficacy. After a week you'll notice a new shining flexibility. There will even be an improvement after the first "dipping." And eventually, your fingernails will be long, strong, glossy and beautiful, wintertime or not.

For the name of this salon fingernail oil, purchasable for home use for lustrous-looking fingernails, phone the Beauty Dept., LIberty 2-4000 any day except Sunday, or write to Ruth Mugglebee, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

THE CUTS OF MEAT found in the stores vary so much from day to day that it is often difficult to get what you really want. "There is plenty of pork in the market, but not so much beef," said the Chef. "So I bought a combination—three-quarters of a pound of lean pork, three-quarters of a pound of the more expensive lean beef, and one-quarter pound raw ham, which is what you call sky-high, but," he continued triumphantly, "we can combine them with some cold boiled potatos, and make that new meat loaf you suggested, which, we must tell our friends is not a mere hash."

"Wait a minute, Chef," I interrupted. "Don't look down your nose at American hash."

"Ah, non," he hastily explained, "American hash is really excellent. I mean this meat loaf is very different."

COOKED MEAT

"I understand what you mean. Hash is made with cooked meat. But for this new meat and potato loaf, the meat is raw, and the appetizing juices cook into the potatoes and other ingredients to make a delicious blend. Besides, it's a good way to make the most of your meat money for the day; for when the loaf is done there's enough for dinner for a family of four, with a little left over to slice and fry for breakfast.

"I shall make a quick brown sauce from the juices left in the pan, and it will taste very good with the loaf," said the Chef. "For a vegetable I feared that kale was cheap."

"And it's just the thing to go with the meat loaf," I added. "Kale is not as popular as it deserves to be; for it's one of the richest of all vegetables in Vitamin A; and we can all learn to cook it so it will be enjoyable. Generally speaking, overcooking and uninteresting seasoning is the difficulty."

"For that I have something special," exclaimed the Chef. "I would like to use it for my trick for today."

PUREE OF GREEN PEAS

Turn the contents of a (No. 2) can of peas into a saucepan. Add 2 c. cold water, 1 tsp. sugar, 2 thin slices onion and ½ tsp. dried mint leaves. Cover and simmer 20 min. Rub through a sieve. Add 2 c. milk. Stir together 2 tbsps. butter or margarine creamed with 2 tbsp. flour, then with a little of the hot soup. Stir into the first mixture, and cook and stir until it reaches a slow boil. Add 1 tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper. Serve garnished with a very little cooked shredded carrot.

THREE-MEAT AND POTATO LOAF

Put ¾ lb. lean beef, ¾ lb. lean pork and ¼ lb. raw smoked ham through the chopper. Then add 4 good-sized cold boiled potatoes, and 2 slices onion; put through the chopper a second time. Mix ½ c. fine soft bread crumbs, 1-3 c. top cream, 1 egg slightly beaten, 2 tsp. salt and ½ tsp. pepper. Add to the meat and mix thoroughly. Form on an oiled pan into a loaf about 8 in. long and 3 in. high. Brush with liquid gravy seasoning, cover with fine dry crumbs. Bake in moderate oven 350 to 375 F. for 1¼ hr. The loaf will spread and flatten somewhat. Serve with brown gravy.

TOMATO CELERY ASPIC SALAD

Combine 1 tbsp. plain unflavored granulated gelatin with 1 tbsp. cold water. Then dissolve over boiling water. Add the juice of ½ lemon or ½ tbsp mild vinegar. Add to 1¾ c. canned tomato juice. Season with ½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce, ½ tsp. onion juice, 1-3 tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper. Chill until the mixture looks thick and syrupy. Then stir in ¾ c. diced celery, 2 tbsp. minced green pepper and 6 sliced stuffed olives.

Pour into a loaf pan first rinsed with cold water. Chill in the refrigerator at least 6 hrs. To serve, cut in 2½ in. squares. Place on individual salad plates; garnish with shredded lettuce or chicory. Pour ½ tbsp. mayonnaise diluted with soured cream, over one corner of each square of aspic.

Hostess' Favorite Recipe

By MARTHA LEE

MISS REBEKAH HOBBS, Boston socialite, is most enthusiastic about this dessert souffle. She says it is rather tricky to make, but if carefully done, the result is delicious. The mixture raises very high and since the double boiler is well buttered, the souffle should be a nice golden brown color.

ANDRENA'S SOUFFLE

3 heaping tbsp. granulated sugar
4 egg whites 2 tbsp. orange marmalade

Beat egg whites and sugar together until very stiff. Then fold in marmalade. Put in a 2-quart double boiler which has been very well greased—including the cover. Boil slowly for 1½ hours. The cover must be on very tight and never lifted. "If you peek in the dish," says Miss Hobbs, "you're sunk!" Turn into a platter and serve immediately with unflavored whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

Utility Coat Cut On Straight Lines

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

A TOPCOAT for anyone, anywhere, any woman, used to be a fashion staple. Now it's hard to find. Hard or not to get hold of, women still want at least one simple, wearable coat in their wardrobes.

The best kind of utility coat is cut on straight lines, without flare or fuss. It is classic in feeling. It might be dress-length but fingertip length is better, for then seasonal changes in hemlines make no difference.

Its material should be quiet enough in texture and color so that the coat can be worn with a variety of suits and dresses. Knize, who designed the top-coat sketched today, tiny-checked black and white wool with touches of solid black. This combination is effective in itself but what makes it really a prize is the way the coat turns into a suit when worn with a slim black skirt. The coat is three-quarter length, double-breasted, unbelted, unflared.

IF YOU are playing tag with price tags . . . your worries are over, for here's a fine quality print dress for under $30. And for spring, 1948 . . . that's news, fashion and otherwise! It is a Ken Classic dress fashioned of Onondaga's "Riviera" design in red, gray and white wave stripes . . . worked horizontally in the bodice, vertically in the full skirt . . . with a tiny round collar and cuffed short sleeves, fastened with pearl studs for make it a smart style presentation. And it should be around for your close-up scrutiny by now.—RUTH MUGGLEBEE.

Wife Suspects Mate

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHEN SUSPICION of a husband or wife has been planted in the mind of the other partner to the marriage, there are only two things to do:

One is to bring the thing out in the open, talk it over, and try to get at the facts, so that if the suspicion is found unjust, it can be killed at once, or, if confirmed, dealt with as may be advisable. The other is to refuse to let that suspicion get a hold on you and, instead, retain your faith in the other person unless future evidence shows that faith be unjustified.

There is, of course, an in-between course which, unfortunately, most wives seem to follow when confronted by suspicions of their husbands' loyalty. That is, to let the suspicion fester in their mind until it has poisoned their whole relationship.

HER PLAN FAILED

Because she adopted the first course and tried to get at the facts by confronting her husband with her suspicion, and failed, I hope that the young woman who writes me, signing her letter "A Desperate Wife," will not err in taking the middle-of-the-road posture.

This is her story.

"This morning I got a telephone call from a girl who wouldn't give her name and who said that she had been going out with my husband. I mentioned him about the phone call at lunch, and he said he didn't know who would pull a trick like that. She named several nights in the last couple of weeks when she said she had been with him. They were nights when my husband was supposed to have been working at the garage. I sometimes call him there at night and he usually answers the phone, so I don't know whether he goes with her after he finishes at the garage or not. I don't know whether to believe him or not. I love him very much and certainly would hate to lose him. What am I to do?"

One of the saddest things about this girl's situation is that she is only 18 years old, the mother of a two-year-old boy and expecting another child very soon.

Under the circumstances, it seems to me that the only wise thing for this wife to do, at this time, is to refuse to harbor her suspicions, no matter what evidence there may be in favor of believing them, and determine to hold on as long as possible to her faith in her husband. To repeatedly question him and accuse him can only bring matters toward a showdown in which the thing she fears may happen, and she might lose him. To brood over her suspicions silently will ruin any happiness she still might have. But it takes courageous endurance to tell her husband that she knows he would never believe her confession to him and then try to make herself believe it and act as though she didn't mind it if it doesn't very well have matters the way they are.

Few people, unless they are worthless characters indeed can go on indefinitely betraying a person who trusts them. If the husband's guilty conduct is only make him a rotter in his ways. If he is not, she will always be glad she didn't treat him as though he were.

Browne Bridal

FEBRUARY WITH its extra day for Leap Year is a popular month for romance this year.

Added to the already imposing list of February weddings is that of Sarah Eden Browne of Winchester who will become the bride of Malcolm W. Greenough, Jr., at a fashionable wedding next Saturday in the Unitarian Church, Winchester.

The prospective bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Crowninshield Browne, a graduate of Brimmer May School and Radcliffe College.

Mr. Greenough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Greenough of Beacon st., served in the Navy and has just completed his senior year at Harvard.

LT. AND MRS. FRANK PARNELL OMOHUNDRO have left for a honeymoon trip to the Laurentian mountains in Quebec following their marriage Saturday at the Gordon Chapel of the New Old South Church. The bride is the former Betty Ogilvy Muir Murray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gibson Murray of Newton Center. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Omohundro of Garrett, Ind.

The bride's parents being Scotch the chapel was decorated with white heather and guests danced to Scottish music at the wedding reception at the Hotel Somerset. Betty wore an off white satin gown with a pleated bertha and a band of pleating around the full train. Her French illusion veil was caught to her hair with clusters of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade of white orchids and eucharis lilies.

Her sister, Jean Louise, was maid of honor wearing cerise taffeta with a bustle back and matching coronet hat. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids were Elizabeth Barrie of Braintree and Ruth Renz of Scituate. They wore peacock blue taffeta with yellow and pink roses.

After cutting her cake and tossing her bouquet the bride changed into a going-away suit of taupe wool with brown accessories and orchid corsage. After Feb. 10 the couple will be at home in Watertown. Lt Omohundro is studying for his M. A. in naval construction at M. I. T. He graduated from Annapolis in 1943.

DEBT REPAID

(A Complete Short Story)

By CHRISTOPHER KING

ED MALLOY watched his recent visitor vanish down the hall. The man didn't look like one of Dr. Walsh's sons. The Walsh boys had all been clean-cut, fine looking kids as Ed remembered them from his school days in St. Louis.

The man who had just left looked as if he had been hanging around West Madison st. Ed wondered if the story he had told was true, that he had just been released from the Army hospital where he had been recovering from tuberculosis, and that he needed $25 for tools so he could get a job out in Lincolnwood.

Ed had given him the money; not so much because he believed him, but because he wanted to believe that he was at last able to repay someone for all the things Doc Walsh had done for him. Doc Walsh had saved the lives of Ed's mother and father after that terrible accident. Ed remembered how tough it had been to pay all the hospital bills, and he remembered, too, that they never saw a bill from Doc Walsh. Ed knew he should do anything he could for one of Doc's sons.

Principal Characters

ED MALLOY, who owes a great debt to DOC WALSH and tries to pay it to the doctor's son. Then there is interfering OFFICER JAMES.

As Ed turned away from the hall he thought the big policeman waiting was the complete opposite of his recent visitor. Ed nodded to him, and he followed Ed over to the desk

"I'm Frank James. Do you buy your own tickets to the policemen's ball game or tell me to see the boss?"

Ed smiled. "I'll take two myself. You're pretty direct."

The policeman peeled off two tickets, and dropped them on the desk

"I'm in a hurry to get rid of these, Mr. Malloy. Who was your friend?"

Ed looked up. "You are direct. Are you selling tickets or what?"

"Nothing up, fellow reminded me of someone

THE POLICEMAN'S LUCKY DAY

"That was one of Doc Walsh's boys. Don't imagine you would know who Doc Walsh was. He was our family doctor in St. Louis. Anything else on your mind?"

The policeman walked to the door. "Nothing else. Thanks for buying the tickets. Hope I'll be able to repay you some day."

Ed Malloy was disturbed about the visit of Tom Walsh, who had claimed to be the son of the doctor, especially after the policeman had seemed interested. He was startled two days later to receive a phone call from a man who identified himself only as the foreman at a construction job out in Lincolnwood

The foreman first asked him if he was Edward Malloy and if he knew a Tom Walsh. When Ed replied that he did, the foreman asked his address. He then explained that he had hired Walsh, who had asked that $25 be deducted from his first pay and a check sent to Malloy.

Malloy almost let the phone slip out of his hand. This must be one of Doc's boys! He had never expected to get the 25 back. He asked the foreman how Tom was doing, and was told that he was fitting in well and boarding out at the foreman's house. Malloy thanked the foreman for calling, and went down to the drugstore for lunch. He was surprised when James, the policeman, sat down next to him.

"Buying those tickets must have brought me luck. Five minutes after I left your office I was assigned to a new job. I'm off my feet now." The policeman pointed to a motorcycle standing outside.

Ed looked out the window. "That's a break for you."

"I believe in luck," the policeman replied. "How about that other fellow who saw you that day? Maybe you brought him luck, too."

Ed nodded. "I guess it was a lucky day. He got a job out in Lincolnwood. The foreman just called me up and said he'd arranged to pay back some money I lent him."

The policeman got up. "So long, Mr. Malloy. I'm going to stick around you a while, just in case you're my luck charm. Let me know how this Walsh guy makes out. Maybe we both hit a lucky day."

Ed did not hear from Tom Walsh, but during the next week he saw a lot of the policeman Frank James. In fact he saw too much of him. Every time Malloy left the building Officer James was hanging around. He was always in the drugstore at lunch time, and Malloy started to make plans to avoid him. James had begun to ask all sorts of personal questions, about where Ed lived, where he was going every time he went out

One night Ed left his house at 11 o'clock to get cigarets at the corner, and saw Officer James standing across the street by his motorcycle. In exasperation he called the station, and asked if they had instructed a policeman to follow him. No one knew anything about it, and the Captain promised he would call James in

Two nights later, as Ed was preparing to go to bed the phone rang. It was the foreman in Lincolnwood.

"Mr. Malloy, something terrible has happened to this Walsh guy out here. He's sick as a dog, and must be taken to the hospital right away. I've called ambulances and cabs, and can't get anyone. Can you drive out here and take him in?"

Malloy hesitated. Why couldn't they get someone else? Was the kid really Doc's son? He must be. Hadn't he arranged to pay back the loan? Maybe this was the way he could repay Doc Walsh. He wrote down the directions to find the foreman's house, grabbed his wallet and ran out to the car. Officer James was standing in front of his car.

"Where to tonight, Mr. Malloy?"

"Out to Lincolnwood. Say, just what business is that of yours?"

Without answering, James reached out and grabbed the slip of paper with the directions to the foreman's house. He looked at it for a moment, and handed the slip back to the sputtering Malloy. Before Ed had a chance to stop him, James was across the street.

Ed raced the car down the quiet street, turned north on Western, then 10 minutes later, turned west on Devon. He glanced at the directions. There was the ball park and the canal up ahead, and here was the street just this side of the canal. He turned right. There didn't seem to be any houses in this block, just the woods along the canal. The house was in the next block, anyway. There was a car ahead. Malloy pulled up.

As he stopped a man jumped out of the parked car, opened the door of Malloy's car, and pressed a gun against his side

"Drive down to the end of the block. Where the street ends."

He jabbed once with the gun and Ed put the car in gear. He did not dare look at the man, but his voice sounded familiar.

"Stop here!"

Ed pulled the car up at the dead end. The gunman jabbed him to get out, and he obeyed. Another man came out of the shadows to join the gunman. They propelled Ed toward the trees along the canal. He saw a path leading down to the water, and he knew he'd have a chance to see his captors as soon as they came to the bend in the path. He turned quickly, but as he did a gun roared and he felt a terrific crash splitting his head apart. He felt himself going down.

OFFICER JAMES TELLS HIS STORY

He could hear voices. He could recognize one. It belonged to Officer James. Ed tried to shake his head to clear it. He felt he was traveling miles. He decided to try to open his eyes.

The glare of the light stung them, but he kept them open. He was staring into the policeman's face. Then he saw the rest of the hospital room. James was talking to him.

"So, when you said he was one of Doc Walsh's sons I knew something was wrong. I was at Notre Dame with the Walsh boys and knew all of them. I kept an eye on you, since we'd been having a lot of this kind of trouble. People go out on a call for help and get slugged. I knew you were getting the buildup when you told me about the foreman calling you saying Walsh wanted to pay you back. I hung around waiting for them to call you out. When it came tonight I beat you out there, and waited around the bend in the path.

"I didn't think they'd try to slug you until they got down to the water, but when you turned the foreman bird let you have it. I had to wing him to stop them. Now if you want to do something for one of the real Walsh boys, come out to the policeman's ball game. Tom Walsh is pitching. He'd be glad to meet someone like you who thought so much of his father."

THE END.

Irish Olympic Demand Vents 440-Year Gripe

By AUSTEN LAKE

AMONG THE MINOR IRRITATIONS of the Olympic games is Ireland's insistance that the six counties of the North merge its athletes with the 26 counties of the South. England says No! But Ireland cites its Constitution, promulgated April 30, 1937, which reads (Art. 2, Page 6) "The national territory consists of the WHOLE of Ireland, its islands and territorial seas."

When I talked to Eamon de Valera on the day the Constitution was authorized, he said "Eire means ALL of Ireland. We do not recognize partition." And there you have the basis of Dublin's demand that the Ulster athletes combine with the Irish national team at London next summer.

It Goes Back to King James

THAT'S TYPICAL of Irish politics. For almost every problem of present-day Ireland threads back through the centuries, a curious blend of current economics with racial memory. Thus inevitably the roots of Irish thought are set in the soil of history and Irish inclinations are to peer backward through time's swirling mists and mingle past bitterness with future hope.

I had gone a few miles north of Dundalk, County Lough, to the border where there are two customs huts, 20 yards apart and identical with the frontier posts between the Russian and American zones in occupied Germany. The first, painted Gaelic green, is posted with a bilingual sign, saying, "Motorists Halt." The second, colored regal red, carries the legend, "British Customs. Stop."

A tall, curly-headed official on the Southern side gave me grinning permission to pass. But the Ulster officer demanded $50 deposit to bond my antiquated car. His attitude was courteous, but firm against my plea that I only wished to cross for an hour's ramble. And presently, from sheer curiosity, the Free State youth meandered over to make it a three-cornered discussion.

The relations between the two were cordial enough though their political sympathies were separated by four hundred years and four rods of macadam road. There was tea simmering in an earthen pot and the Northern official produced cups of thick china, pouring potions of the strong brew and producing hard patent biscuits from a moisture-proof tin.

Outside the foot traffic and bicyclists passed unheeded and it seemed a pity, as we sat and sipped, that the two Irish factional states could not share the brew of amity as North and South were fraternizing in this customs shack. Here then is the frontier of Irish rancor and the rift of discontent which traces back to 1609 when King James VI of England confiscated the lands of the O'Neills and O'Donnells and settled most of Ulster's 3,750,000 acres with Scotch and English farmers. King Jimmy didn't know then that he was sponsoring a 1918 Olympic quarrel.

To locate the exact instant of frustration in this sports feud one must revert to the distant date of March 23, 1613—the day when, under crown charter, a London colonizing company was formed under the title of "The Society of Governors and Assistants of London for the New Plantations of Ulster Within the Realm of Ireland."

Under the administration of English landlords, the society recruited hordes of English and Scotch crofters to re-settle within confiscated cottages and acres of the Irish clans. And the native Irish, except for the few who stayed to pay the new system of rentals, trekked west into the mountains of Mayo, Donegal and Connemara to live among the rocky crags and hand down bitterness as a legacy to their children.

Irish and Elephants

I HAVE NEVER MET a people with such long memories. So I went to the fertile county of Meath where the Irish government was transplanting the descendants of the ousted O'Neills, as reward for their lost heritage, and giving each migrant family a $5000 farm, two-story house, 22 acres, farm machinery, cattle, poultry and seed, and $7.50 a week. So, having seen these hardy people in Connemara I wanted to see them resettle in Meath.

They were shy and suspicious at first, clinging to their Gaelic vernacular, but gradually thawing into English. And the older folk were wrestling with a homesickness for the sight of their tumbled country, the rubble walls that climb up from the sea cliffs and their tiny terraced fields. "Och, the country here is so flat," one wrinkled grandmother told me as she rocked unceasingly and held her wrists crossed loosely, "Now in Ballyconeel . . ."

They missed the unlimited miles of mountain common where their black-faced sheep and shaggy cows grazed free of tax. And they yearned for the vast, black bogs where a man could slice slivers of peat and stack them in the sun to cure. And there were handlooms in the mountains where wives made homespun and the men cobbled boots. So they had pined for their mountain pockets of brown oats and rootcrop, where time and space hung suspended on the purple pinnacles and the voice which swept down the bogs was the voice of old fellowship. Now in Ballyconeel . . .

So many had gone back with that elusive, deep-buried and metaphysical feeling that the Irish landsman has for his own soil—a spiritual vibration that escapes definition. For Ireland is a sea of national emotion with individual waves leaping in surface envies and contradictions, but with tides of undercurrents flowing in a unison of purpose. So the grievance over partition has been handed down through the centuries as a collective obsession and the current Irish demand that North and South athletes compete as one Olympic unit, or not compete at all, is an outcropping of a 440-year-old gripe. The Irish, like elephants, never forget.

U. S. Boy Olympic Leader

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 2 (AP)—Norway swept in front of Sweden today in unofficial Olympic winter games standings when Sverre Farsttad won the 1500-meter (metric mile) speed skating championship in record-shattering time of two minutes 17.6 seconds.

The United States, expecting to rally in this event, picked up only one point when Johnny Werket of Minneapolis finished sixth in 2:20.2. Americans were completely out of the picture in the down hill skiing competition, the other main event on the morning program.

However, American hopes for an Olympic championship soared when Richard Button, 18-year-old Englewood, N. J., boy, led Hans Gerschwiler, the world champion figure skater from Switzerland, after three of the five compulsory figures had been completed. Button had 511 8 points to the Swiss stylist's 504.1.

Button's strength lies in the free skating competition Wednesday.

In duplicating the victories teammates Reidar Liaklev and Finn Helgesen scored in the 5000-meter (3⅛ miles) and 500-meter (1-3 mile) tests. Farsttad clipped almost two seconds off the Olympic record 2:19.2 set by Norway's Charles Mathisen in 1936.

Another Norwegian, railway employe Odd Lundberg, also bettered the record in 2:18.9 to finish behind Ake Seyffarth of Sweden, whose mark-breaking 2:18.1 gave him the runnerup position.

This put Norway temporarily on top of the unofficial standings with 44½ points to Sweden's 39.

Henri Oreiller of France won the second Olympic gold medal of the day when he outclassed the field in the two-mile downhill ski race. His time was two minutes, 55 seconds.

Hedy Schlunegger of Switzerland captured the women's downhill ski title in two minutes, 28.6 seconds.

Oreiller's triumph gave France its first championship in the games and its first points in the scoring table, which is reckoned on ten points for first and 5-4-3-2-1 for the other five top finishers.

Austria also scored for the first time today when Franz Gable placed second in the ski race.

Ice hockey, which has been stripped from the official program by the International Olympic Committee after a bitter controversy over the rightful U. S. entry, continued its unofficial course.

Sweden won its first hockey game by defeating Austria, 7-1. It was Austria's fourth straight setback.

The day was the chilliest of the four days of winter competition but the sun was brilliant, and softening snow handicapped the downhill skiers to some extent.

With sixth place in the downhill ski event still to be determined the nation's stood in this order through the morning events:

Norway, 44½; Sweden, 39; Switzerland, 25; Finland, 24; United States, 15¼; France, 10; Austria, 7; Belgian, 3; Holland, 3; Britain, 2 Italy, 1; Canada, ½

Sauer Signs Four-Year Pact To Coach Navy

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 2 (AP)—George Sauer, who piloted Kansas University through two highly successful football seasons, has signed a four-year pact to coach at Navy.

He will be Navy's first civilian coach in 15 campaigns.

By signing with Navy, Sauer has taken on what observers say will prove one of the toughest assignments in major collegiate football.

Navy was won but two games in two seasons—and will face California, Cornell, Duke, Missouri, Penn, Notre Dame, Michigan, Columbia and Army next fall.

His appointment was announced here and at Kansas Saturday night. No financial terms were disclosed, but he said it was an opportunity "I can't pass up." Sauer was paid $10,000 a year at Kansas.

The new coach will get his first look at the middle squad when spring practice opens in March. The academy said that he will have "considerable freedom in picking his principal assistants," and they should be on hand with him when spring training opens.

Sauer said that appointments of his two main assistants at Kansas—backfield Coach Vic Bradford and line coach Bob Ingalls—"depend upon clearance at Annapolis."

Priest Facing Deadly Puncher In Pete Mead

by JACK CONWAY

PETE MEAD OF NEW YORK, rated as one of the best leather tossers in the middleweight division, will throw explosive punches against Al (Red) Priest of Cambridge in the feature 10-round bout of a double windup in the Goodwin A. C. show at the Garden tonight. Mead arrived in Boston with a record of 22 wins out of his last 26 starts. He later defeated three of the men who outscored him.

Phil Buccola did some fistic scouting for Matchmaker "Rip" Valenti at Miami, Fla. Phil saw Mead score an impressive victory, and suggested he be matched with Priest.

Mead, like Priest, parades to close quarters behind a barrage of blows. He seldom takes a backward step, and it is believed he will make a sparkling showing in his local debut.

Mead first started boxing at Grand Rapids, Michigan. He later invaded the New York field where he placed himself under the management of Tex Sullivan. Mead made three appearances in bouts in the New York Garden.

Priest will be battling with his back against the well-known wall. He suffered two recent defeats by Ralph Zanelli, and then dropped a close verdict to the heavy-thumping Anton Radik in Chicago.

Al has been trained for tonight's skirmish by Matty Norton, and he is in the best possible condition. If Priest wins, he can go on to get some good money matches here.

The other ten-round tussle will bring together Dulio Spagnolo, Italian heavyweight, and Harry Bernsten, Scandinavian title holder.

Sportsmen's Show Has Strong Appeal

THE NEW ENGLAND Sportsmen's and Boat Show at Mechanics Building has a wide appeal, and it will attract thousands of visitors during the week. Great crowds attended the show over the week-end which caused Sheldon Fairbanks to predict new attendance records here.

When Fairbanks had a colorful racing stable, he knew the value of timing in the winning of a race. Gold Step, Range Dust and other fine thoroughbreds that raced for Fairbanks won important races because Earl Porter or some other jockey made his move at the right time.

Sheldon has always favored opening his show here about the first of February. By that time of the year people are tired of cold weather and snow and they are eagerly looking for the coming of spring and life in the outdoors. This is particularly true this year when people have tired of an almost endless number of snowstorms.

I attended a luncheon Fairbanks gave to the press at the Hotel Statler on Saturday. When Floyd Bell introduced Gov. Bob Bradford, it was apparent that His Excellency got some relaxation, getting away from the cares of the gas dispute and talking hunting and fishing.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, world's most famous woman athlete; Mary Vanderburgh, who opens the Sportsmen's Show by singing "The Star-Spangled Banner," and Diana Dixon of Los Angeles, who imitates bird calls, all came in for considerable attention.

Speaking of spring, Red Sox and Braves will be working out at Sarasota and Bradenton in Florida four weeks from today. It will then be a pre-view of spring for ballplayers, club officials and sports writers. I am polishing up my membership card in the Baseball Writers' Association so that I shall be able to climb aboard the Braves Special when it leaves Boston for Bradenton on Feb. 27.

EDDIE QUINN, who used to promote small-time wrestling bouts in Waltham, has hit the jackpot promoting in Montreal . . . Jack Sharkey, who has been refereeing mat bouts for Quinn, says Eddie has branched into the night club field and has opened a de luxe place that cost $150,000.

The final figures show that the Callahan A. C.'s all-star show at the Garden a week ago tonight showed a $10,000 profit. The cost of the boxers was $13,500, while the Garden expense ran a shade over $6000. There was $1000 or so in other expenses.

Terriers-Huskies Clash on Arena Ice

HOCKEY THIS WEEK

Tonight—Boston University vs. Northeastern, 7 p. m. Mass. at Devens vs. M. I. T., 9 p. m.

Tomorrow night—Boston College vs. Boston University, 7 p. m. Harvard vs. Northeastern, 9 p. m.

Another rich treat is in store for the local college hockey fans this week with the traditional Boston College vs. Boston University game, which may well decide the New England Intercollegiate League race, coming as the feature contest of a Tuesday double-header which also marks Harvard's return to the Arena ice after its mid-year lay-off.

This Eagle-Terrier clash winds up a difficult four-games-in-five-days assignment for Coach Harry Cleverly's BU six, which comes back to Boston today after week-end contests with Army and Princeton to meet the Northeastern Huskies in the opening fray of Monday's double-header. The Monday night twin bill includes a University of Massachusetts at Devens game with M.I.T. at the Arena at 9 p. m., after the Terrier-Huskie match, starting at 7 p. m. is concluded.

Rod-Reel Addicts Pack Sport Show

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

"Only 50 per cent more rods than were available last year . . . Plenty of reels . . . More nylon lines, with less stretch . . . And not very many new gadgets." . . . Such were the comments and consensus of opinion from the scores of tackle dealers and experts with whom we chatted at the annual Sportsmen's Show, now in full swing at Mechanics Building.

There were numerous spinning reels on display, indicating that this art, introduced from England about three years ago, is becoming popular here. If you haven't tried one, it's easy to make long casts with 'em, but one must be fairly expert at thumbing, in order to control the casts.

A new reel, known as the Slip-Cast, has the principle of a spinning reel, but a trigger replaces the thumb, and it's very accurate. Mounted on top of the rod, the reel has a readily-adjustable drag. This device drew considerable attention.

For striper fishermen, there's an improved Jerry Sylvester plug, which has removable hooks, thus preventing the usual danger when carrying these lures in pockets.

We tried the P and K laminated glass fibre rods, finding that they are really strong. Constructed with seven laminations, the rods are hollow, with excellent action. They are made in various types for salt water, casting, fly fishing, and spinning.

Best fly tying vise we've seen in the new model, known as the Universal Vise. Offering the feature of a manual flywheel for micromatic control while turning on hackle. It also has a locking screw for converting to stationary use, in addition to other improvements.

Maryland Racing Was Improved after Expose

(This is the ninth of a series of articles giving the "inside story" of how Racing Commission Chairman George Mahoney ran race-track crookedness out of Maryland.)

By ALEXANDER GIFFORD

A tempest without equal in the history of Maryland racing swept the state when five stables, including two of our most famous ones, were ordered set down for horse doping all in one day.

It raged for months, and out of it came two improvements in Maryland racing which were to eliminate once and forever the possibility of any more doped horses running in the State.

These were:

1—The pre-race saliva test by the Maryland mobile laboratory.

2—The receiving barn.

The controversy over the Maryland racing rule under which Mahoney had ordered the five stables set down was the first of two battles he was to lose, but finally "come back off the floor" to win.

The whole basis of the argument between Mahoney and the trainers was based on the assumption that Maryland rule might victimize innocent owners or conditioners of horses.

Owners said, for instance, that it was unfair to set down a stable or a trainer for doping a horse when the doping might be done by someone entirely outside of the trainer's control.

They said:

"Anyone could drop a carrot or an apple containing a dose of stimulating drug into a horse's stall."

Mahoney had a chat with trainer Maxie Hirsch, famous handler of Assault, among other world-beaters, and Hirsch told him:

"Any trainer who, when he's saddling his horse, says he doesn't know whether he's doped or not is a liar or a fool."

SPIRITED AWAY

Upon this information, this writer was sent post-haste to Pimlico to get a verification. He found the clubhouse seething with excitement, a group of trainers, turf writers and relatives of trainers in the press-room, most of them upbraiding Mahoney in short words containing four letters.

The writers found Maxie Hirsch there, but Hirsch was taking no part in the reviling of Mahoney's order. The writer asked him:

"Did Chairman Mahoney quote you correctly?"

Hirsch said:

"That's about what I said."

Suddenly he was spirited away by a tall writer for a turf publication and the two went into a room and closed a door. Pretty soon Hirsch came out with a yellow sheet of paper in his hand and handed it to this writer. He said:

"That's my statement for the press."

It said, in effect, that he had known the five trainers involved all his life and thought them incapable of any wrong-doing.

The case was carried into the courts, and after a hectic battle in the lower courts, landed in the sacred purlieus of the Maryland Court of Appeals.

The court, quite reasonably, held that the Maryland Racing Commission rule, adopted during the Jervis Spencer days, was unconstitutional in that it held a trainer guilty without due process of law, and also deprived the stable owner of his valuable right to win purses without giving him a day in court.

Out went the hallowed rule under which stables and trainers had been set down for years, and the hands of the commission were tied.

A meeting at Bel Air was coming up, and while Mahoney and his aides, including the Attorney General's Department studied ways and means to handle the situation, the mobile laboratory went right on taking samples.

Dr. Paul K. Leatherman, a former Hopkins chemist and Dr. A. R. Sloane, a pharmacologist, reported the doping at Bel Air was "wholesale."

In nine days they caught nine horses that had been stimulated, not including the ringer "Don't Delay," which had been snagged out of the first race on opening day, and never got to start under the guise of Au Flo as his owners had intended.

That was an all-time record and Mahoney decided to do something about it.

During the time before the knocking out of the commission's rule against horse stimulation, the commission had been toying with the idea of protecting the innocent trainers against having their horses stimulated by putting the horses in locked stalls, with fine wire netting about them.

FELT UNDUE DANGER

This suited neither trainers nor Mahoney, for both felt it was an undue danger to the horse in case of fire, and the whole procedure was undignified, and troublesome.

Track fans who walked about the stables remarked that the horses looked like jailbirds in their locked stalls.

The mobile laboratory and the pre-race test were not adopted without strong opposition, and at a hearing before the racing commission on September 18, 1946, just before the opening of the fall season, noted horsemen appeared to declare the mouse test no good.

Among those present were Alfred G. Vanderbilt, the present Racing Commission chairman, Stuart S. Janney, Jr.; John N. Gaver, and others.

In tomorrow's Boston American will be revealed more of the story of how George P. Mahoney warred on the doping of race horses.

Celts Play Knicks Friday at Garden

With five consecutive defeats in back of them, the Boston Celtics will have an opportunity to pull themselves together this week as they are listed for but one game. They meet the New York Knickerbockers at the Boston Garden on next Friday evening.

Prior to the Knicks-Celts contest, Medford High and Chelsea are slated to meet in an Greater Boston Interscholastic League game.

If Boston can pull itself out of the current slump, they will have to do it against the one team that has found them a soft touch so far this year.

Schmidt's Injury Puts Bruins in Bad Position

By BILL GRIMES

On Nov. 30, Bill Barilko, Toronto's wild defenseman, charged Milt Schmidt into the boards and the Bruins lost their star, whose left knee was seriously injured by the double-barell collision, for 16 games.

Last night Schmidt was again put out of commission, possibly for the rest of the season. As Milt was going in (all alone) for a shot late in the second period, Murph Chamberlain hacked at the Bruin from behind. Chamberlain's stick crashed against "Schmiddy's" bad knee and felled him.

After receiving first aide treatment, Schmidt limped down the ice on the Bruins' side of the rink. As he reached the penalty box, where Chamberlain had been sent for tripping, Milt unloaded a round house punch at the Canadien and landed. It was another of those one punch fights, for Murph went into a clinch and held on until his opponent was dragged away.

If as is believed Schmidt's knee has suffered a relapse we wouldn't give much for the Bruins' chances of making the playoffs. During the six weeks that Schmidt was on the hospital list, the Rossmen did a terrible nose dive, losing eight decisions while winning only four and tieing the same number. Between Dec. 21 and New Year's Day, they dropped five in a row.

The Bruins began to show better advantage when "Schmiddy" returned to the line up on Jan. 14 but after picking up six points in five games, they came apart at the seams again and the 3-0 defeat hung on them last night by Les Canadiens was the third straight setback, all of which happened on their home ice.

Coach "Dit" Clapper ordered the Bruins to report at their Garden dressing room at noon today. The players will take a look at the movies which were taken during some of their recent home games.

The Bruins haven't turned in a good game since they beat the Maple Leafs two weeks ago. They have a "hex" on Rangers, otherwise the Blue Shirts would have taken them over the hurdles a week ago last night. They were badly outplayed by the Red Wings, despite the fact they lost by a margin of but two goals, one of which was scored, after Frankie Brimsek had been removed from his post. Then, they hit a new low against the Blackhawks Saturday night. And, last night, they just couldn't do anything right. They milled around all evening without being able to muster up any team work.

As a matter of fact, it was Elmer Lach and Bill Durnan, who ruined whatever change the Rossmen had of breaking into the games' won column last night.

Lach and Durnan staged a two-man show, the like of which has not been seen in these parts in many a moon. While Durnan was holding the Bruins scoreless, Lach was scoring three goals, one of which, however, was tainted, for it was obvious that he kicked the puck into the Boston cage.

From the start (Flaman went off 16 seconds after the opening face off) to the very end of the game, there was a steady parade to and from the penalty box. Referee Frank "King" Clancy thumbed no less than 16 players to the bastille but, still, he came out even, eight Bruins and eight Canucks.

After the game, a crowd of more than 100 fans waited in the outer lobby for the Canadiens but to no avail for the players departed via the elevator and were escorted out through the baggage room and back to their hotel.

If Coach "Chuck" Conacher is able to keep his Blackhawks, who are now only 4½ games behind Boston and Montreal, rolling the Bruins and Canucks may sit out the coming play off, providing, of course. Milt Schmidt is lost for the balance of the campaign.

Silver Skates Derby Draws 13,900 to Garden

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Know how to make an exclamation point on a typewriter? Well, if you haven't mastered that tricky combination on your L. C. Smith—or your Remington or Underwood, for that matter—then it would be wise to refrain from attempting written comment on the annual New England Silver Skates Derby sponsored by the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser at the Boston Garden.

It just wouldn't do! The bargain show of the skating season offers too much! It's the hit show of the year on ice! It's a natural, down to earth extravaganza that couldn't be captured by Hollywood cameras.

Ask any of the capacity crowd of 13,900 fans who sat through from noon to 4:40 for a show sparked with versatility from start to finish. They'll readily testify that there's no better show on earth—even if Barnum and Bailey would have their objections. They saw everything on ice in a frosted show that would warm the heart of the meanest scrooge.

It was another of the famous Derby's, packing the punch of a professional, well-rehearsed, homey, state fair. It had everything from A to Z, and of course that includes BCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXY.

Wan't evidence? Here it is.

A—Albright, Miss Tenley, and she was really alright. Like a pilot in a crash, who goes right back in the air, Miss Albright, 13-years old of the Boston Skating Club, took a slip on her derriere but she came right back to try the tricky fling — successfully — once again. Her spunk, nonchallance, won the plaudits of the crowd in a delightful waltz exhibition.

B—There's never been a Derby without the Broadhursts of Roslindale and so naturally Jane had to keep the family name in Derby annals. She was the first champion of the day, winning the Girls' Senior honors. And there's no forgetting Al Broadhurst in the Race of Champions—a 1-miler that is rapidly becoming as famous as the big indoor events which attract such speed specialists as Gil Dodds. Or the Backmans of Wilmington.

C. Miss Wiffy Conway of the Cambridge Skating Club needn't be the boss' daughter to break into the alphabetical ladder. Her sixth appearance in the Derby—especially her cut-ups to the "Lady from 29 Palm"—certainly warrants an immediate invitation for a return to this skating classic in 1949.

D. Dillon and Crowley must be combined here as the cutest, most petite combination ever on silver blades—Dorothy Dillon and Rosemary Crowley of the Skating Club of Boston. This duet—the pair of them as lovely as animated dolls in a toy department display—needed only blonde hair to be Sonja Heine's of midget proportions.

E—Everybody who attended for their unstinted applause; for their Enthusiasm; for Every contestant who failed to win a prize; for the Effort they put into the show to make it the grand success anticipated.

F—The young and the old—they all come to the Derby. Honors for the veteran of the show go to Lou Felix, 66-year-old North Adams entrant in the Mens' Senior race. He was eliminated in a trial heat but he was in there most of the way.

G—For Alex Goguen of the Olympic Skating Club of Boston who made the Race of Champions a race worth seeing.

SPARKLING IMPORT—Audrey Planty, from Birmingham, Eng. She was featured performer at Silver Skates Derby.

H—That's for sgt. George Hunter, the swing and sway policeman from the ranks of Boston's finest whose intermission waltzes have always been appreciated. And for Alex Hurd, too, the barrell jumper from Washington, D. C., whose feats rival the man on the flying trapeze—a featured entertainer whose timely entrance was a perfect breakaway from the speed events.

I. For Interested parties like the Rev. George M. Dowd who gave his time to help the show along; referee Joe Fox and Innumerable others.

J. Pig-tailed Nancy Johnson, 3½-year-old blond sweater girl, whose parents became so lost in the stands that she became quite exasperated and refused to talk until they were discovered.

K—The Kennedy's of Boston have a rival in Pattsy Kennedy of Somerville. She was as much at home on skates as in any junior size rocking chair.

L—Wee Marie Leger of Waltham, an entrant in the Girls' Midget event, mistakenly took a short cut in her qualifying round after going the course like an elevator operator—up and down—all the way.

M—For the Midgets in general. Billy Mahoney of Waltham in particular for his starting line antics and for a pair of stars, Marion Murphy and Andra McLaughlin. Miss Murphy was grand in her Dutch Dance. Miss McLaughlin, New York, put umph into her Boogie Woogie dancing.

N—The many novices whose first appearance before such a tremendous gathering caused mild tremors of stagefright but the way they pulled through in concentrating on winning was an experience to behold.

O—All by herself in the spotlight, Miss Betty Oerlach of Pittsfield sped her way to a thrilling victory in the Girls' Midget final.

P—Miss Audrey Planty of London, Eng., the star of an entire program of meteors, proved conclusively exactly how she attained the rating of English Gold Medalist. Her charm in her Latin American number and also on her return appearance probably gained 13,900 sympathizers in any "aid to Britain" program that the government might produce. Miss Planty had more personality on the ice than her homeland has territories.

Q—For the Quick and orderly manner in which the crowd left the Garden in order to clear the way for the Bruins' game at night.

R—That of course is for the musical Karle Rohde whose music masters played an unending stint of favorite tunes throughout the offered the perfect, merry background under maestro Rohde, another who has never missed a Silver Skates Derby.

S—Another little midget who'd steal the heart of any man—Miss Roberta Shea of Jamaica Plain—show, failed to qualify for the finals but she showed all the promise of an Ice Follies protegee.

T—For the Treasure Trophies, donated to the Derby and awarded to the winners.

U—Unparalled competition in every event, especially in the Mens' Senior event which found Connie Lambert of Lawrence edging through in front after "Nippy" DiNinni, Providence, had captured the lap prize.

V—For all the Victors who unanimously congratulated the defeated and took their honors with grace.

W—New England's Senior figure skating champion, Miss Jane Weiss of the Skating Club of Boston, must have been born with silver skates. When the orchestra played the "Best Things In Life Are Free" for Miss Weiss, they must have had reference to the pleasure granted by Miss Weiss' skating.

X—Can only be for excellence throughout.

Y—To You, the public, for making this show possible.

Williams Arrives—Blasting the public for criticizing his personal business, Ted Williams, Red Sox slugger, wrathfully exploded "The public can go to the devil." He arrived in Boston early today with an amiable smile lighting his face. Reporters questioning him about his reaction to the criticisms over his going fishing while Mrs. Williams was giving birth to a daughter here caused the slugger to blurt out his wrath. STORY ON PAGE 5
